Description

For more than 150 years, Craven Dunnill has been creating, sourcing and supplying some of the finest ceramic and porcelain tiles and mosaics in the world.

Founded in Shropshire in 1872, the business has built an enviable reputation through a combination of craftsmanship, innovation and an uncompromising commitment to quality. Today, that heritage continues under fifth-generation family ownership, with Craven Dunnill firmly established in Shropshire and recognised internationally for its distinctive approach to tile design and manufacture.

Its decorative tiles have become part of the fabric of some of the UK's most recognisable buildings and destinations, from the Palace of Westminster and Kew Gardens to Harrods and the London Underground. They have also found their way into the homes and projects of generations of discerning customers. This is a business with heritage, firmly established in Bridgnorth and continuing to develop its operations and customer offering.

Location

A LOCATION WITH MOMENTUM

The Stourbridge Road area has evolved significantly in recent years, with a growing mix of retail, trade, engineering and commercial businesses establishing themselves in the area.

The continued expansion of Bridgnorth Aluminium, together with new occupiers at Chartwell Park and surrounding commercial locations, is contributing to an increasingly diverse and established business environment.

Against this backdrop, Craven Dunnill's site offers businesses the opportunity to establish themselves within an area that is already attracting investment, enterprise and commercial activity.
