Asha's story thus far is nothing short of remarkable. After rewriting the history books as a teenager with the world at her feet, Asha once feared whether she would even be able to jog again after suffering a career-threatening cruciate ligament injury that left her unable to partake in any physical exercise for 2 years. Return she did and is now proudly an Olympic Bronze medallist, European Indoor 60m Champion and national record holder. As one of the senior members of a very young Team GB 4 x 100m relay team, Asha has further success in her sights, starting with the World Athletics Championships in London later this year and a Gold medal in the 2018 Commonwealth Games.

With a degree in Drama from Kingston University, she is a natural performer and engaging speaker with an infectious energy, who is able to give the perspective of both a current Team GB athlete and senior member of the athletics team. She is committed to continuing her work within schools.
