About Ex Nihilo

Ex Nihilo helps (multinational) enterprises getting the job done in the field of transfer pricing and business analysis. With offices in the Netherlands and USA (North Carolina) we focus on the US, Dutch and German market. We support companies in the preparation and implementation of a value chain analysis, in which the business processes of your company are optimized and where your business processes are consistent with the tax rules of the various countries, not only now, but also in the future. Reliable and accurate information needs to be available real time to senior management in a way it supports the business needs and strategy. We realize this for our customers by translating the needs into clear KPI's and implementing and/or optimizing the current management information system.
