of workforce employed in manufacturing.

Poole boasts a strong economy with a diverse mix of companies. Expanding sectors include marine technologies, tourism and leisure, advanced manufacturing and engineering and creative industries.

At 10,000 acres Poole Harbour is one of the world's largest natural harbours, well placed to handle freight with approximately 1.25 million tons of cargo and around 400,000 passengers. Annually there are more than 5,000 commercial shipping movements within the harbour. Poole is home to a very large number of industrial estates and sites are in high demand

The central area of Poole is poised for major regeneration that will significantly enhance the area as a retail, leisure and cultural destination as well as meeting the demand for new housing and business workspace. A bold and ambitious regeneration scheme situated on the waterfront in Poole will unfold over the next 10 years. The recent opening of a second harbour crossing will unlock land for new homes, employment opportunities and public open space that together will generate up to £1 billion of investments.
