THE ORIGINAL STUDIO

“MAKING A FILM COMEDY
AT EALING STUDIOS
FELT VERY SPECIAL.
THERE IS AN INCREDIBLE
HISTORY IN THE WALLS.”

SIMON PEGG

Since 1902, Ealing Studios has been the home of British cinema, and many of the greatest British films have been made there. Under the leadership of Michael Balcon, the famous Ealing Comedies such as The Ladykillers, The Man In The White Suit and Kind Hearts And Coronets were produced by the Studio.

The tradition continues to this day. Star Wars Episode 2 - The Attack of the Clones, Downton Abbey, Shaun of the Dead, St Trinian's, Notting Hill, The Darkest Hour and Back to Black were all shot at Ealing.

“THE HISTORY OF EALING STUDIOS IS REALLY THE HISTORY OF BRITISH FILMS. EALING STUDIOS HAS BEEN AT THE HEART OF EVERYTHING THAT IS BEST ABOUT OUR INDUSTRY.”

JULIAN FELLOWES

“FROM BRIDGET JONES TO THE THEORY OF EVERYTHING AND THE DARKEST HOUR, WE HAVE HAD BRILLIANT EXPERIENCES AND WONDERFUL OUTCOMES FILMING AT EALING STUDIOS. IT’S A GREAT PLACE, AND FROM CENTRAL LONDON AMAZINGLY CONVENIENT.”

ERIC FELLNER, WORKING TITLE

The North and South Buildings of the Michael Balcon Building offer a total of 25,500 sq ft of office space, positioned around a newly built, modern sound stage. The site includes 24/7 security, offers impressive views across London, and is also home to a UK film academy, whose students bring emerging talent and creative energy to the campus

THE MICHAEL BALCON BUILDING

Inspired by Art Deco design, the Balcon Building offers 25,500 sq ft of bright, adaptable office space—available by floor or as a whole. Its spacious, open-plan floorplates can be tailored or divided to suit a range of layouts, making it an ideal base for a distinctive and creative headquarters.

“WE ALL HAVE OUR ROOTS IN EALING – YOU CAN’T ESCAPE IT.”

TERRY GILLIAM

THE HEART OF THE STUDIO

On arrival at the Balcon Building, you're greeted by an inspiring, light-filled, double-height reception and a mixture of co-working spaces and meeting rooms on the mezzanine. It's the new heart of Ealing Studios, where tenants and guests will intermingle with the cast and crews working on the site.

“AN ENORMOUS NUMBER OF TALENTED PEOPLE
ASSEMBLED UNDER ONE
ROOF IN THAT RATHER ENGLISH WAY.”

STEPHEN FREARS
