DESCRIPTION

The land at Barony Colliery, is an area of semi-rural ground adjacent to and south of the category B listed 'Barony A Frame', an open-air museum dedicated to the mining history of the local area.

The site is broadly 'L shaped' and is laid out in vegetation and woodland extending south towards the Lugton Water. There are partially surfaced sections to the north of the site adjacent to the 'Barony A Frame' and its associated car park.

The site extends to an area of 44 hectares (109 acres), or thereby.

PLANNING

The site is zoned as a 'miscellaneous opportunity' in the adopted East Ayrshire Local Plan. Conditional planning permission in principle was granted in January 2024 under reference 23/O491/PPP, for the development of an Eco-Wellness Park comprising self-contained accommodation units (not for permanent residence), reception building and associated wellness therapy, educational and leisure uses.

Indicative plans show a potential scheme comprising of a 40-bedroom hotel, 160 standalone residential units and a series of commercial opportunities commensurate with the proposed eco-wellness use. Detailed information is available via the East Ayrshire Council online planning portal.

The property may have potential for other uses, subject to consent, and further enquiries should be directed to East Ayrshire Council planning department on 01563 576790.
