

An Opportunity

The well intervention market is expected to be a key area of activity in the coming months as operators continue to focus on increasing production from their existing assets. As momentum picks up in the oil and gas industry in the coming months, we expect to see a growing focus on well intervention activities within the M&A space as operators continue to drive production from existing assets.

WELL INTERVENTIONS

Get in touch with our industry experts to learn more about:

- ▶ How, when and why well interventions are performed
- ▶ How intervention differs in onshore and offshore operations
- ▶ Geographical considerations
- ▶ The major players and competitive dynamics
- ▶ Key risks to businesses operating in the sector
- ▶ How well intervention companies can differentiate themselves and win business

“During the industry downturn, many operators turned to well intervention activities to maintain production levels while minimising capital outlay. As the industry has recovered, the advantages of flexibility combined with high returns on investment have not gone unnoticed and the intervention market continues to develop the expertise and technologies to meet the needs of ever more complex operations.”

Well Intervention Expert with 25 years experience

If you would like to speak to industry leading experts who work in the field click here or scan the QR code.

