

PARTNERSHIP INREV - HENLEY BUSINESS SCHOOL

Industry educational standards to get a boost

INREV and Henley Business School (University of Reading) form a partnership to launch the INREV-Henley Certificate on European Non-listed Real Estate Investment.

This new initiative, which sets educational standards within the industry, will support the development of professionals, and will improve their ability to engage with the non-listed real estate industry.

Working with a leading institution such as the University of Reading will further increase the quality and reputation of the INREV education programme.

The School of Real Estate and Planning (REP) is the largest in the UK for teaching and research in this field. Established in 1968 at the University of Reading, REP is the only major UK real estate and planning centre to be located within a business school. Being part of the Henley Business School reflects a close and longstanding collaborative relationship with industry.

REP enjoys a worldwide reputation for excellence in both teaching and research: it is consistently ranked in the top three positions in all major league tables and the US-based Urban Land Institute ranks Reading as the leading real estate centre in Europe.

We aim to open registration for the Certificate in September 2016. Before then Henley Business School will review the current INREV course material.

Upon successful completion, Henley Business School will issue delegates with the INREV-Henley Certificate on European Non-listed Real Estate Investment.

Recipients will also be able to obtain an exemption towards the MSc Flexible Programme in Real Estate Finance and Investment, offered by the University on a part-time block release basis.