Protect your business

An unexpected crisis can pose serious problems to your business. It can put your staff at risk, threaten your resources and business continuity and, if it is handled badly, destroy a reputation that may have taken years to establish.

Order from potential chaos

Integrating CLIO into your critical incident procedure will allow all members of the incident team real-time access anywhere - from the office or via laptop, BlackBerry or Smartphone and will:

Allow advanced planning of incident procedures

Prioritise and track actions

Provide guidance and advice to the crisis management team

Provide a framework to test plans and review effectiveness

Bring calm, order and organisation to the incident team

Ensure the team is better organised and more effective

Allow the team to share detailed and accurate information

Help the team make effective, co-ordinated and timely decisions

Allow key personnel and senior management to be kept informed

Duty of care

After the incident CLIO provides a full, incorruptible audit trail with evidential proof that can be used to demonstrate duty of care in any subsequent legal action.

Our customers tell us that they would never consider putting their business at risk by going back to a paper system.
