TONY SLATTERY

Tony is an actor, comedian and singer. He won a scholarship to study medieval and modern languages at Cambridge University, where, he met aspiring actor Stephen Fry who invited him to join the renowned Cambridge Footlights. In 1981, The Footlights, with Tony in tow, won the very first Perrier Award at the Edinburgh festival with THE CELLAR TAPES. Tony has had a prolific career in television as an actor and a presenter, but is probably best known for his comic improvisation work on WHO'S LINE IS IT ANYWAY? Latterly, his television work has included more dramatic roles in programmes like KINGDOM, CASUALTY, CORONATION STREET and several one off dramas. His theatre work includes ME AND MY GIRL, RADIO TIMES, PRIVATES ON PARADE and NEVILLE'S ISLAND, which earned him an Olivier Award nomination for his blistering performance as GORDON. Tony's film credits include PETERS FRIENDS, HOW TO GET AHEAD IN ADVERTISING, UP 'N UNDER, THE CRYING GAME and THE WEDDING TACKLE. He has also worked extensively in the corporate world with commercial and voice over work.
