

Clinical and Commercial Stage Assets for Rare Indications

A mid-cap publicly traded US Pharma company specializing in rare diseases with a highly efficient global commercial team is seeking assets for a wide range of rare disease indications that have reached clinical development. Our client's pipeline consists of 3 products approved in several indications and 2 products in Phase 1-3. They are interested in expanding their portfolio with clinical-stage and commercial assets.

Approaches of Interest:

- Open to a wide range of therapeutic areas. A non-exhaustive list with some examples of diseases of interest can be found here
- Indications should have a patient population of 300 – 200,000 in the US
- Open to a wide range of modalities, including small molecules, recombinant proteins, antibodies, and antisense oligonucleotides. Non-gene-therapy nucleic acid-based therapeutics are of particular interest
- Repurposed drugs will be considered only if they have been reformulated into a new product for the rare indication

Out of Scope:

- Cell therapy, gene therapy, and medical devices
- Assets for oncology indications and psychiatric disorders
- Assets that are under clinical development or marketed for non-rare indications
- Generics, biosimilars, and natural products that are not IP-protected
- Diagnostics and drug discovery platforms

Developmental Stages of Interest:

- Opportunities from Phase 1 onwards (including commercial) are in scope
- Opportunities that are Phase 2 onward are of highest interest
