Manager Commentary

There were efforts to lower the temperature on global markets in August, but investors kept the ball in the air, buying into opportunities. Russian shares were popular thanks to strengthening of the national currency, and the ruble-denominated segment was not left out, despite currency pressure on exporters. Sberbank was the main driver of the domestic market, while heavyweight oil and gas stocks lagged behind.

US equities went to new highs as investors weigh recent Fed announcements and possible tax reform.

We sold shares of Novorossiysk Commercial Sea Port in August.
