Manager Commentary

Global markets continued their recovery path in April. Russian shares were hit by fresh US sanctions, increasing the level of risk for Russian assets, but we believe that investors will regain some of the losses thanks to rising oil prices. Promises of stimulus measures (infrastructure spending, etc.) by the re-elected President and the new government may also help local shares.

We believe the US stock market is still in the growing trend, setting the tone for all other risky assets.

We sold shares of Russian automaker GAZ and bought shares of its rival Sollers. We also bought shares of the Chinese auto dealer, China Auto Logistics Inc.
