Manager Commentary

Global markets were directionless in September. Soft rhetoric from world central banks supported markets, but upside was limited by growing risk in the European banking sector and new concerns over Brexit. US stocks traded in a narrow range just below historical highs and our trading activity was muted due to significant risks of an equity sell-off.

The ruble continued to strengthen thanks to relatively supportive oil prices. We are still defensive in terms of portfolio allocation, keeping a large share in cash.

We sold GDRs of Sberbank and bought shares of First Solar Inc., and we replaced a holding in Mostotrest by shares of Novorossiysk Commercial Sea Port.
