Manager Commentary

Global markets dived again after a short-lived recovery in March. Russian equities were also weak and came under increased selling pressure at the start of April due to fresh US sanctions. Developed markets finally found support later in the month, but Russian assets continue to struggle.

We made some trades with US stocks, taking advantage of market volatility but we remain cautious on Russian shares due to US-Russia political tensions.

We bought shares of Alphabet Inc. and Goldman Sachs Group Inc., and sold GDRs of the Russian mobile operator Megafon.
