Manager Commentary

Performance of global markets remained mixed in April and the Russian stock market was under pressure from geopolitical news. However, the Russian foreign exchange market and domestic bonds were in good shape due to continued inflow of funds to these asset classes.

Stock markets remain expensive and vulnerable to changing sentiment in early May and Russian stocks have a specific negative factor as the legal challenge against Sistema corporation by Rosneft and Bashneft points up persistent politicization of big business in the country. We remain cautious and are keeping a significant share of the portfolio in cash.

We bought shares of Exxon Mobil Corp. and sold shares of RKK Energia, the Russian space rocket manufacturer.
