Manager Commentary

The US stock market set new historical records, supporting other markets, though Russian shares were relatively weak, partly due to the sanctions threat (also coming mainly from the US). Russian exporters fared better than consumer-oriented companies.

We expect risk appetite for EM assets to remain in place so long as the US stock market remains fundamentally strong. But the overall environment is uncertain and we continue to hold a significant amount of free cash.

We bought shares of Micron Technology Inc. and Twitter Inc. in August.
