Decosit celebrates a successful first edition with expansion in 2020

Decosit looks back on a successful first edition. The Belgian textile federation (Fedustria) blew new life into the interior-fabrics exhibition by bringing together 16 textile producers in Brussels Expo at the beginning of September. The two-day trade fair attracted around 300 visitors with some big names, including Beaulieu, Libeco and Ter Molst.

“Exhibitors and visitors were very satisfied with the results”, says Kris Vermoesen, Fedustria’s Product Manager Textiles, who didn't have an easy task to set up this event in a very short time. “Above all, Decosit triggers international contacts. Visitors came from countries such as the United Kingdom, the Netherlands, France, Italy, Poland and Germany. We were delighted that almost 70% of those visiting Brussels came from abroad.”

Vermoesen believes that this confirms the need for a high-quality trade fair in the autumn. It is our ambition for Decosit to become the new reference within the world of furniture and decoration, that is organised by and for professionals of the industry.

There will therefore be a new edition. On 8 and 9 September 2020 the trade fair will return to Brussels, and it will immediately be bigger. There will also be a place for designers again. Decosit will offer a unique networking foundation for both producers and designers at the beginning of the autumn.

In order to be able to optimally welcome exhibitors and visitors from home and abroad in 2020, Fedustria is working behind the scenes with a new partner. More info to follow shortly at www.decosit.brussels.
