

LONDON FIELDS BREWERY - HACKNEY HOPSTER BEER

RECALL NOTICE

Undeclared Wheat and Oats

What's happened?

We are recalling a limited number of cans and bottles of London Fields Brewery 'Hackney Hopster' beer as it contains wheat and oats, which are not declared on the product labels. This means that those products are a possible health risk to anyone with an allergy to wheat or oats. However, they are otherwise perfectly safe to drink.

Keg product sold in the on-trade (pubs and bars) is also incorrectly labelled. We have informed customers to advise consumers at the point of purchase that the product contains malted barley, wheat and oats, and new labels are being made available. This will prevent any need to recall keg product.

Which products are affected?

Hackney Hopster with a best before date prior to 04/12/19.

What should you do?

If you have purchased any affected products you should return them to us and you will be given a full refund. Please contact us on the helpline number below for guidance on how to do so. IF YOU ARE ALLERGIC TO WHEAT OR OATS, PLEASE DO NOT CONSUME THE PRODUCT.
