LILAC COTTAGE, CAVENHAM, BURY ST. EDMUNDS, SUFFOLK.

Cavenham is an ancient settlement, mentioned in Peveners book of Suffolk due to its “Black Ditches” which are thought to be Anglo Saxon. In more recent times Cavenham Heath has been adopted by Natural England as a site of Special Scientific Interest and in turn provides exceptional countryside walks. The A14 trunk road is about 3 miles and in turn provides quick access to the Cathedral town of Bury St Edmunds 8 miles and the City of Cambridge 24 miles. A branch line rail link to Kings Cross Station is available at Kennett 5 miles.

This charming semi-detached Victorian cottage has been sympathetically enlarged and now provides extensive, versatile accommodation with a mixture of brick and flint facades under a slate tiled roof. The accommodation is full of character with Suffolk latch doors, exposed flintwork, fireplaces, etc. Further benefits include a large garden and a detached barn. In all about half an acre.
