With 22 years' experience in both primary and secondary education, including working in specialist behaviour provisions, residential care settings and as a local authority inclusion advisor, I have a breadth of experience in working with schools to embed systems that support pupil behaviour and emotional wellbeing. I approach this through a combination of training sessions, coaching, mentoring and direct working with senior leadership teams, teachers and support staff.

Whether the focus is promoting consistency in implementing behaviour systems, supporting pupils at risk of exclusion or developing interventions for emotional management, social skills and nurture groups, I can deliver a wide range of training programmes which focus on utilising effective practical strategies to create tangible improvements for pupils and staff.
