As part of our Religious Education we learn about celebrations in other faiths. Throughout the year each class spends some time learning about a different celebration.

This term, Class two have been learning about the Jewish celebration called Shabbat. As part of their learning they made a special type of bread which Jewish people eat during their celebrations. The bread is called Challah bread; it is a sweet, plaited bread.

Maya, Ruby, Joshua and Sophie worked as a team.

This is some of the boys and girls kneading the dough. Even though the dough was sticky they all had a try at kneading. The children had a lot of fun and were laughing about all the dough stuck to their hands.

They learned to plait the bread before it went in to the oven.

"I loved working as a team." Eva

"I am going to have a go at making this at home." Ryan

In the process of making the bread years three and four had a lot of fun and when they tasted the bread they loved every bit of it.

After the years three and four had tried the bread, the rest of the children in school had the opportunity to try it too.

These are years five thoughts on the Jewish Challah bread:

James said he thought, " the bread was awesome."

Milly Robson said, "It was well baked and very soft. "

Harriet said, "It was very fresh and warm and tasty."

Tristan said, "It was yummy, soft and scrumptious."
