Sex and Relationship Education Policy

1 Introduction

- 1.1 Our school's policy on Sex and Relationship education is based on the DfES document Sex and Relationship Education Guidance (DfES 0116/2000). We recognise Sex and Relationship Education as the policy's full title, but for brevity's sake we will refer in the rest of this policy simply to 'S&R education'.
- 1.2 In the DfES document, S&R education is defined as 'learning about physical, moral and emotional development'. The guidance states, 'It is about understanding the importance of marriage for family life, stable and loving relationships, respect, love and care. It is also about the teaching of sex, sexuality, and sexual health'.
- 1.3 'Sex and Relationship' education is part of the Personal, Social and Health Education (PSHE) curriculum in our school. When we inform our pupils through S&R education about sexual issues, we do this with regard to morality and individual responsibility, and in a way that allows children to ask and explore moral questions. We do not use S&R education as a means of promoting any form of sexual orientation.

2 Aims and objectives

- 2.1 We teach children about:
- the physical development of their bodies as they grow into adults;
 - the way humans reproduce;
 - respect for their own bodies and the importance of sexual activity as part of a committed, long-term, and loving relationship;
 - the importance of family life;
 - moral questions;
 - relationship issues;
 - respect for the views of other people;
 - sexual abuse and what they should do if they are worried about any sexual matters.

3 Context

- 3.1 We teach about sex in the context of the school's aims and values framework (see the values statement in the Curriculum Policy). While sex education in our school means that we give children information about sexual behaviour, we do this with awareness of the moral code, and of the values which underpin all our work in school. In particular, we teach about S&R in the belief that:
- sex should be taught about in the context of marriage and family life;
 - sex education is part of a wider process of social, personal, spiritual and moral education;
 - children should be taught to have respect for their own bodies;
 - children should learn about their responsibilities to others, and be aware of the consequences of sexual activity;
 - it is important to build positive relationships with others, involving trust and respect;
 - children need to learn the importance of self-control.

4 Gloucestershire Healthy Living and Learning (GHLL)

4.1 We now participate in the Gloucestershire Healthy Living and Learning (GHLL) programme; this has replaced the Healthy School Standard scheme, which promotes health education. As participants in this scheme we:

- consult with parents on all matters of health education policy;
- train all our teachers to teach about sex and relationships;
- listen to the views of the children in our school regarding S&R education;
- look positively at any local initiatives that support us in providing the best S&R education programme that we can devise.

5 Organisation

5.1 We teach about sex through different aspects of the curriculum. While we carry out the main sex education in our Personal, Social and Health Education (PSHE) curriculum, we also cover some aspects of sex education through other subject areas (for example, science and PE) which we believe contributes significantly to children's knowledge and understanding of their own bodies, and how they are changing and developing.

5.2 In PSHE we teach children about relationships, and we encourage children to discuss issues. We teach about the parts of the body, and how these work, and we explain to the children what will happen to their bodies during puberty. For example, we teach the children that boys' voices will change during puberty, and we explain menstruation to both boys and girls. We encourage the children to ask for help if they need it, and to make use of the 'Wishes and Worries' boxes in their classrooms.

5.3 In science lessons, in both key stages, teachers inform children about puberty and how a baby is born. For this aspect of our teaching we follow the guidance material in the national scheme of work for science. In Key Stage 1 we teach children about how animals, including humans, move, feed, grow and reproduce, and we also teach them about the main parts of the body. Children learn to appreciate the fact that people are not all the same, and that we need to respect each other. In Key Stage 2 we teach about life processes, and the main stages of the human life cycle, in greater depth.

5.4 In Year 6 we place a particular emphasis on health education, as many children experience puberty at this age. We liaise with the Local Health Authority about suitable teaching materials to use with our children in these lessons. Teachers do their best to answer all questions with sensitivity and care. By the end of Key Stage 2, we ensure that both boys and girls know: how babies are conceived, develop and are born; how children's bodies change during puberty; what menstruation is, and how it affects women. We always teach this with due regard for the emotional development of the children.

5.5 We arrange a meeting for all parents and carers of children in Year 6 to discuss this particular programme of lessons, to explain what the issues are, and how they are taught, and to see the materials the school uses in its teaching.

6 The role of parents

6.1 The school is well aware that the primary role in children's S&R education lies with parents and carers. We therefore wish to build a positive and supporting relationship with the parents of children at our school, through mutual understanding, trust and cooperation. To promote this objective we:

- inform parents about the school's sex education policy and practice;
- answer any questions that parents may have about the sex education of their child;
- take seriously any issue that parents raise with teachers or governors about this policy, or about the arrangements for sex education in the school;
- encourage parents to be involved in reviewing the school policy, and making modifications to it as necessary;

- inform parents about the best practice known with regard to sex education, so that the teaching in school supports the key messages that parents and carers give to children at home.

We believe that, through this mutual exchange of knowledge and information, children will benefit from being given consistent messages about their changing bodies and their increasing responsibilities.

- 6.2 Parents have the right to withdraw their child from all or part of the sex education programme that we teach in our school. If a parent wishes their child to be withdrawn from sex education lessons, they should discuss this with the headteacher, and make clear those aspects of the programme in which they do not wish their child to participate. The school always complies with the wishes of parents in this regard.

7 The role of other members of the community

- 7.1 We encourage other valued members of the community to work with us to provide advice and support to the children with regard to health education. In particular, members of the Local Health Authority, such as the school nurses and other health professionals, give us valuable support with our sex education programme.

8 Confidentiality

- 8.1 Teachers conduct sex education lessons in a sensitive manner, and in confidence. However, if a child makes a reference to being involved (or being likely to be involved) in sexual activity, then the teacher will take the reference seriously, and deal with it as a matter of child protection. Teachers will respond in a similar way if a child indicates that they may have been a victim of abuse. They will not try to investigate, but will immediately inform the named person, the DSL (Headteacher), for child protection issues about their concerns. The Headteacher will then deal with the matter in consultation with the Child Protection team and other health care professionals (see also the school policy on Child Protection).

9 The role of the headteacher

- 9.1 It is the responsibility of the headteacher to ensure that both staff and parents are informed about the school S&R education policy, and that the policy is implemented effectively. It is also the Headteacher's responsibility to ensure that members of staff are given sufficient training, so that they can teach about sex and relationships effectively, and handle any difficult issues with sensitivity.
- 9.2 The Headteacher liaises with external agencies regarding the school S&R education programme, and ensures that all adults who work with our children on these issues are aware of the school policy, and work within its framework.
- 9.3 The Headteacher monitors this policy on a regular basis, and reports to governors, when requested, on the effectiveness of the policy.

10 Monitoring and review

- 10.1 The Curriculum Committee of the governing body monitors the impact of the school S&R education programme, its content and delivery and makes recommendations for revision when necessary. This is reported annually to the Governing Body.
- 10.2 This policy will be reviewed in two years, or earlier if necessary.
