School News

As part of our work on British Values and preparing pupils for life beyond school the pupils will be learning about democracy.

Over the next two weeks as we head towards the general election, we will be finding out why people vote for a government, what a manifesto is and how it identifies the beliefs and identity of a party.

In September we will see democracy in action when we vote for our new School Council.

As stated in the school's recent Ofsted report it is essential that the school prepares pupils for the future and in doing so develops an interest and understanding of their role in society and an understanding of the way the country operates. Of course this is not just the role of the school. Please listen to the article below from a mum in London.
