

National Fishing Month 2017

FREE Fishing Lessons

As the singular largest participation initiative in the UK, National Fishing Month (NFM) is a great opportunity to get more young people and their families into fishing.

Thousands of people take part in National Fishing Month every year, most of them new or novice anglers, and a large number will be loyal to where they caught their first fish once they begin to fish regularly.

NFM is run by the Angling Trades Association and supported by its trade members, along with the Angling Trust, Canal and Rivers Trust, Angling Cymru, the Professional Anglers Association and the Environment Agency. The annual event, which benefits from a massive amount of press coverage, boasts over 250 nationwide events each year, and attracts thousands of participants who want to learn to fish.

We would appreciate it if you would consider circulating the attached poster on noticeboards around school and through parent newsletters and portals please.

Pupils and their parents can book a place at a local event near them on the National Fishing Month website www.nationalfishingmonth.com.

Please help us get everyone outdoors during the summer holidays, having fun together and learning a new skill.
