Menu

Bronze: For everyone to try.

Silver: If you're feeling confident.

Gold: An extra challenge.

This week, in English, we have been looking at writing our own personification poems about a tsunami. Remember personification means giving something that is not alive a human form i.e. the chocolate looked at me, wanting me to eat it.

Bronze:

For the bronze homework, this week, I would like you to write your own personification poem about the tsunami that happened in Indonesia. It can be like the poem we have written this week in English. I would like you to write about four verses, you can write more if you like, and try to include the following in your poem:

- Adventurous vocabulary
- Noun phrases
- Similes
- Metaphors

Silver:

For the silver homework, this week, I would like you to write your own personification poem about Vesuvius exploding. Remember this is the volcano in Pompeii that we looked at a couple of weeks ago. I would like you to write about four verses, you can write more if you like, and try to include the following in your poem:

- Adventurous vocabulary
- Noun phrases
- Similes
- Metaphors

Gold:

For the gold homework, this week, I would like you to write your own personification poem about anything you would like to. It could be about a pencil in a pencil case, a football in a football in a football match, a rocket going into space or anything interesting that you would like to write about. I would like you to write about four verses, more if you like, and try to include the following in your writing:

- Adventurous vocabulary
- Noun phrases
- Similes
- Metaphors
- Embedded clauses
- Commas
