The riddle - robot

"Ouch!... You bit me!" Peter cried

Peter was trying to catch his snake as it slithered across the wood oak floors. Crash! Across the house in the snake room a echoing shriek of glass breaking shook his spine. "Ugh! Not again!" Peter moaned

Tip toeing he entered the room in the corner the glass was on the floor. This snake that Peter forgot was not ordinary it was covered in metal like a robot. Suddenly Peter dropped into unconsciousness for the snake got a bite onto Peter's neck. ~~So~~ In his imagination Peter woke up in a forest. In the distance, he saw a mechanic robot next to a tree. He could briefly see a sign saying riddle robot. Rushing over he realised it was turned on.

"What are you?" he questioned tapping its head.

"Riddle me this riddle me that. What is man's greatest fear for I am the riddle robot." it stammered slowly.

"Um... I don't know but how do I get home?" Peter replied looking past the robot.

"Home you seek ay well then answer my riddle what is tricks robot "I've heard it, just let me out of this strange place" Peter goes home without interrupted. Peter looked around.

"Is it spiders?" Peter wondered.

"N...O" It stammered.

"Well how about you guess my fear." Peter replied grinning.

"Your fear like most men the fear of dark is particularly common." The robot answered not knowing it had been tricked.

"Good to know. I guess man's fear is dark."

Ding! Ding! "Correct! You are free."

Peter felt proud that he had outsmarted this robot with
