

Star Wars
"day":

Friday 14th May 2018

Y6 Vocabulary

Relative clauses

Subordinating connectors

LO: I can write an exciting narrative based on the attack on both in Star Wars (focus: relative clause and use of subordinating connectors)

As the cold frosty mist, was pack up by the clouds who is quiet a smart and brave robot, who was surprised at his feet, there was a line of dark red sandy mud funnel down at his feet; were red was came from? Who had done it? However, in that split second it closed in locks. He slowed, he slowly put his head up and made out a faint line of... "M-AT" he breathed deeply to him self, Rounding back to base, he saw every one was calm and Zach-Lovers to pick was bright to make out what it takes was saying.

Several snow speeders (all speeded out of the classic et cranking base shelter, ready to put them self in war of good and evil; what was going to happen? In the blink of an eye, the AT-AT, who had been searching for a long, long time to good (and not they have), closed from the mist and sudden

- but not surprised started shaking like that as all they know to do. ~~the AT-AT~~ the AT-AT lives as Luke took his first look on the AT-AT he new struck away that: that the armour was too strong for there blasters so they needed to switch to the harpoons. Luke instructed, ~~the AT-AT~~ he got the Imperial walkers. He new this would not be nec-the communication system had just been knocked back at in back - second main snow speeder park - system so he was on ~~back - second main snow speeder park - system~~ so he was to ~~back - second main snow speeder park - system~~ so he was to ~~back - second main snow speeder park - system~~ so he was

* * * to try the Snow speeder down

* Prove for soldiers for warm