Mon métier (my job)

Je suis un boulanger qui habite près d'une grande ville au sud-ouest de la France. C'est un métier plutôt intéressant mais relativement fatigant. En effet, je dois me lever à trois heures du matin afin de préparer le pain. Mais le pain n'est pas la seule chose que je fais, je dois aussi m'assurer que les croissants et les tartes aux fruits sont prêts pour le matin. Ma femme, quant à elle, se lève à sept heures du matin pour servir les premiers clients. Nous habitons au-dessus de la boulangerie.

Approximate translation

I am a baker who lives near a big town in the south-west of France. It is a rather interesting job but relatively tiring. Indeed, I have to get up at three in the morning in order to prepare the bread. But bread is not the only thing that I do, I must also ensure that the croissants and the fruit tarts are ready for the morning. As for my wife, she gets up at seven o'clock in order to serve the first clients. We live above the bakery.
