

Roomstyler: the next step in interior design

August 2013 - From now on anyone can be an interior designer. Dutch start-up Floorplanner launches Roomstyler: a website where people can design, style and remodel their homes, over and over again.

With Roomstyler there is no more need for hours of pointless heavy lifting or endless squinting at colour-samples. First you remodel your room online and only when you are happy with the result you start decorating in real life.

Sign up for free and start decorating with the 120.000+ items in Roomstyler's virtual library. With the easy-to-use software anyone can create photo-realistic 3D-looks of the interiors they have designed. Moreover, the items in the virtual library are models of real furniture, stretching from all-time favourites such as IKEA sofas and Marks & Spencer beds to extravagant pieces from topnotch designers like Philippe Starck and Marcel Wanders.

Looking for interior inspiration? Roomstyler also functions as a view book with the tens of thousands designed rooms that are already online. With an active community that designs for fun (and for competition!) Roomstyler models new and inspiring designs every day.

From man-caves and spacious lofts to teenage bedrooms and rooftop gardens: Roomstyler has got it all.

See www.roomstyler.com/press for more (hi-res) images, screenshots and quotes.

- NOT FOR PUBLICATION -

PR Contact

Ernest Mistiaen

ernest@roomstyler.com

+31 (0)10-240 06 20

@roomstyler