

Charles Alexander Davison

Camberwell Officer

As a 2nd year Sculpture student in Camberwell, I also run the IDEATE society and an arts paper outside of UAL called JUST in time. Both practices help students and upcoming artists in putting on shows and being published. As officer, I'd be able to use both communities as well as the rest of Camberwell students to act as a sounding board for the students, relaying their wants, needs and desires to UAL.

One example would be the current 2nd years requesting a better representation & identities module, one that employs lectures and guest speakers with first-hand experience in representation to share their knowledge. This is one topic I'd approach at meetings.

Through the IDEATE society, we can discover more of what the students want, whether it's better representation, more critical feedback, or even events & workshops that involve creative communities in South East London outside of the college. IDEATE has already had many conversations concerning various student's quality of education. It would be wonderful to have these voices heard, as officer I could address these voices at meetings.

We're already organising events such as arts fairs & exhibitions for the public as well as students, one coming up on the 28th November called Exxhibit! - an open call for artists in London to exhibit themselves. We intend on holding these monthly, so the support of the college in these pursuits would be another topic addressed as officer.
