

MANIFESTO

My name is Rose Tabuke and I'm running for wellbeing officer. I study Economics and Politics. My experience in leadership is vast as was the head of the student council both in high school and college.

My key campaigning priorities include, mental health, safety on campus, integration of students and inclusivity of students in policy making concerning wellbeing.

On mental health, I want to oversee the effect that an individual's mental health state might affect their participation in university. By seeking professional support where required and ensuring all students are referred in good time to both internal and external services. The person liaising with students will be skilled in undertaking wellbeing appointment and working with a range of internal partners including accommodation, to ensure that information on mental health is received.

On safety, I intend to use expertise in assessment and risk management to ensure students have access to appropriate support packages, including internal and external support.

On integration into the university, I occupy a really important space in this conversation, as an international student. I would like for students to get to know each other better, develop meaningful relationships across all campuses and create an inclusive sense of community.

On inclusivity, any policy made, that affects student's wellbeing, will be discussed with them and they'll be involved in decision making. This won't end here as I will facilitate the next steps, where appropriate.

Finally, I have experience in leadership and my experience in volunteering with young people has heightened my awareness on issues we people face and how to go about them. I also understand that when someone is undergoing depression we can't expect them to stretch their hand, we have to reach out and hold their hand. I'm passionate about film, music, politics and journalism. I hope you will trust me to be of service to you.
