

Smart meters: Shedding light on the rumours

With smart meters you will:

- ✓ have the details you need to use less energy and save money.
- ✓ benefit from bills that are accurate instead of estimated.
- ✓ never have to read a gas or electricity meter again.
- ✓ see exactly where your energy is going, which puts you in control.
- ✓ do your bit for the environment every time you save energy.

Smart meters won't:

- ✗ give us the power to control or switch off the energy you use.
 - ✗ allow us to misuse or pass on your personal data.
 - ✗ take away your freedom to switch to another provider.
 - ✗ require you to have broadband or an internet connection in order to work.
 - ✗ cause you any harm – they actually emit fewer radio waves than your mobile phone.

Helping you keep an eye on your energy use

Smart meters measure the electricity and gas your home uses in 'real time'. They don't track how much energy each individual appliance in your home uses – like your TV, kettle or hob.

But they do enable you to see the difference that switching appliances on and off makes to your overall energy use.
