

Mutual Respect and Tolerance of Diversity in Year 5

Year Five have been learning about people who championed mutual respect. They shared their background knowledge about Nelson Mandela and talked about his experiences.

Using iPads, the children researched Martin Luther King, Jesse Owens and Luz Long. They discussed their achievements and how their positive messages reflect British Values today. Here is what they found ...

“These people were very brave, putting their lives on the line for the greater good. They are still remembered today for their great works of courage and hard work.”

“Jesse Owens was a brave man. In those days black and white people were not allowed to be friends but Jesse Owens did not follow this”