

Dear parents: week started out great- still excited after the Sweden game, Federer playing sublime tennis, all 13 boys and coach rescued from the caves in Thailand in an amazing three day rescue, architects of Brexit all resigning, sun still blazing, wonderful RAF 100 plane flypast over Hackney, Mbabbe a new Pele, KS2, Sats results were great once again and then Wednesday opened up alright then I realised I was bored with and tired of people singing and saying "It's coming home", we still had to face Croatia, then I was just a minute or two away from poor Sir Christopher Meyer 74 battered at Victoria Station by two teenagers, Victoria line closed long journey home, then one of our staff was a victim of attempted theft and possible carjacking in Buckingham Road at 4pm and then Harry Kane misses a sittergave up watching until extra time and switched off when Mandzukic scored. Better team won. Trump is flying directly over our school as I type this, life goes on and a very busy last week ahead and hot !!

Pics of the week ..the rescue of the Moo Paa (Wild Boars) football team has inspired a new generation of Thai cartoonists who all week have been publishing new images. I have often written of my love of a good cartoon and these are a sheer delight. Who cares now about football the Moo Paas are coming home. One late piece of news the only boy who could speak English and talk to the first British divers was in fact a 13 year old Burmese refugee from Mae Sai. Parents who have been long involved with the school will remember we used to collect for the Thai Children's Trust (Patron Cardinal Vincent Nicholls) for many years to help Burmese refugees and orphans from this region maybe we helped him? Who knows and finally .. please be careful getting in and out of cars when collecting children especially after 4pm ... the attackers on Wednesday were young afterwards they tried to drag a girl off her bicycle I wrote a lot recently about crime but put simply London is just not safe anymore sadly 3rd and 4th please I will be shopping on Saturday ... France will win but will cheer for Croatia. Very fond of both countries and Croatian food is not the best when compared to French food but France have been too boring apart from the Argentina game ..+ I like Slaven Bilic ... anyone watch the British Grand Prix last Sunday best ever ... enjoy the photos and its going to be 31° again on Sunday so get out the barbie and hoses and be happy.
