

English

Our story this week is: The Ice Palace by Robert Swindells
We will be continuing to follow our school English scheme 'Power of Reading'. I have uploaded daily planning and activities for children to do based on this story. Upload your completed activities to our class dojo page.

Here are some additional activities you might want to do:

- Can you draw what you think the pine-woods looks like? The extract that we have read is very descriptive.
- Who do you think Starjik is? Write a short story about who Starjik is.
- Thinking about children who have used their voice for change. If you were to do the same, can you write about what changes you would want to make and how you would do this? Think about the people that you learnt about in the 'Imagine it' section.

- Why do you think that the people of the pine-woods remember Ivan for? Can you imagine the different ways that he has helped them?
- Are there people that we remember for the ways that they have helped us? Can you write about somebody that you admire or are grateful to for the help that they have given you? This could be someone that you know or somebody that has changed history. Write a letter to them, what would you say to thank them?

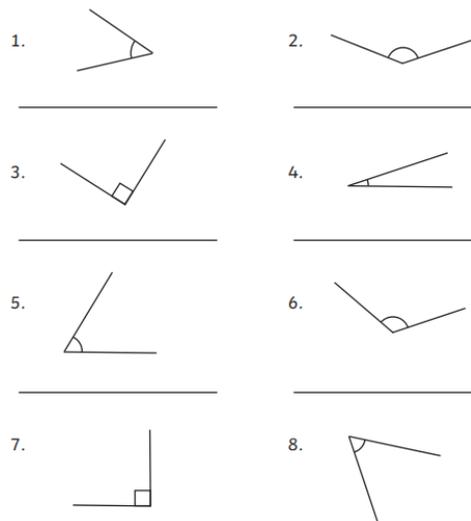

Mathematics

Our focus this week is angles

- We will be continuing to follow our school Maths scheme 'White Rose Maths'. You can find daily videos and activities to do here: White Rose home learning Year 3 <https://whiterosemaths.com/homelearning/year-3/>

Here are some additional activities you might want to do:

- Continue to do Times Table Rockstars, see if you can move up a level! You can challenge each other too.
- Try doing times table quizzes at home like we do in maths lessons. Remember you can either pick a times table to practice or you can try lots of different tables.
- Can you spot any acute, right or obtuse angles around your house? You could spot them when doors are open or on different furniture.
- Do you know whether these angles are acute, right angles or obtuse?

- Try to build your own castle by using junk modelling.
- If you could design a castle, what features would you make sure that it had?

This week's Whole School Home Challenge
What do you know about castles?

You can choose the way in which you do this. It can be a painting, a model, an ICT presentation....anything you like. If you have brothers or sisters from Primary School at home, you can work with them. We look forward to seeing what you create!

We are really enjoying seeing what you have been doing. We know you are working very hard at home to support your children and we very much appreciate it. Thank you very much.

You can upload your child's work by clicking on their alien on our Class Dojo. It has been lovely to see what you have all been up to.

You're all doing great so far, keep going! Miss Moore
