Home Learning Information

Dear Parent carers,

Further to the announcement last week relating to Chadsgrove School's closure for the foreseeable future in order to keep our children safe, many of you may be wondering how to 'educate' your child at home.

In response to this challenge, many of our teachers put together 'packs' containing learning activities, advice and guidance, which were sent home last week. Some of our older and most able pupils were also sent some work via their school e-mail address.

Our talented team of teachers are continuing to work hard to produce educational, engaging and fun activities to be uploaded to our website over the coming days and weeks. These can be found on the Chadsgrove School website:

<https://www.chadsgroveschool.org.uk/>

On the top 'Menu bar', you will now see a 'Home Learning' link. When you click on this, you will see a drop down menu which has links to 'reading' activities and links to recommended 'educational websites'. We will also be organising content into 'subject' folders and 'Class Sets' making it easier to find appropriate content for your child.

At this challenging time, we are also mindful of maintaining our pupils' Positive Mental Health and so our staff have already started creating additional fun and engaging content such as our 'video stories' read by our staff, as these will provide a welcome distraction for pupils.

We also have some other exciting ideas, such as a 'Chadsgrove Radio Podcast', although these may take a little bit of time to create, edit and upload, so please be patient and keep checking the website and our Twitter feed for the latest updates.

Stay safe and look after each other.

Yours Sincerely,

G Brown
