

Joe Brook – Educational Psychologist

Since qualifying as an Educational Psychologist in 2001 I worked for two Local Authorities in London until 2015, when I began working for Cornwall Council. I have several years of experience working closely with maintained MLD and SLD special schools.

My range of work has included:

- Supporting schools through solution focussed approaches to make positive changes for pupils and their families.
- Delivering training to school staff and parents in a number of areas.
- Using a range of assessments to support the identification of pupils' needs with a view to helping members of teaching staff to meet those needs.
- Supporting schools to make systemic changes in areas such as pupil inclusion and behaviour management.
- Working closely with colleagues in Health and Social Care to develop multi-agency approaches to supporting the needs of pupils with complex needs.
- Supporting the local authority to develop systems such as data management, conflict resolution and SEND decision making.
