

World Oceans Day 2020: St Buryan Academy Challenge

After the success of last year's World Oceans Day project, we decided to re-run it—with a slight twist! Last year we asked you to create a powerful piece of art and we had some powerful pieces of work come in. This year you can choose a project from the options below. Make your creation powerful, emotive and think about the message you want it to give.

Option 1

Can you write a story that is set, or involves, an ocean in some way? It could be a fantasy story or it could highlight the importance of looking after and protecting our oceans.

Think about how your story is then presented. Will it be in the form of a book or in another creative way?

Option 3

Have you got a way with words?

Maybe you could create a song or poem that draws people's attention to how important it is to look after our oceans. Think about how you could then present this? Maybe you could create a music video or write a poem in the sand at a beach.

Option 2

Are you an aspiring actor? Maybe you could create a short film and record it that highlights the need and importance of caring for our oceans?

Option 4

Like last year, can you create a powerful, thought-provoking piece of art about the importance of saving and preserving our oceans?

Option 5

Can you create a piece of work that incorporates more than one, or even all of the, other options?

Remember

You may complete the projects with your family but remember that if you have to leave your property, please follow the correct guidance. We will set an initial deadline of 8/7/2020 but this may be delayed depending on access arrangements. Email head@stburyanacademy.org for any extra information.
