Five Unique Scavenger Hunt Ideas

1. The Classic Hunt

The classic game involves a list of clues for hunters to find. Usually, the list is relatively simple, requiring players to find all of the items on the list. What makes it challenging is the fact that items are hidden and people work discreetly to keep their finds from opposing players' eyes. The first person or team who completes the list is the winner!

2. The Picture Hunt

Participants need to snap photos of all the items, people, or places on the list. Instead of simply collecting items, you can have players strike funny poses at specific locations or give them a dramatic scenario to act out for the camera. You don't need special equipment to do a photo hunt because most phones today already have cameras built in. This is an inexpensive and memorable option to try!

3. The Destination Hunt

In this game, you have a series of clues leading you on a trail to a specific destination. It resembles a treasure hunt because each clue leads to the next, and so on until you reach something big at the end. You can get creative here with the wording and images to challenge the players as they search for the spectacular finish line!

4. The Internet Hunt

Take the hunt online to change things up! The list can be a compilation of complex trivia questions, and contestants race to find the answers as quickly as possible. Add an element of pressure and excitement by having a time limit!

5. The Audio Hunt

The last type of hunt requires that players listen for clues instead of look for them. Contestants need to bring an audio recording device (perhaps a phone) to listen for and record specific sounds. The scores are then calculated based on how many sounds the players checked off the list.
