

Charles Darwin

Date of birth: 1809

Date of death: 1882

Charles Darwin is significant mainly for his work on the theory of evolution, which is the idea that all different species have evolved from simple forms: including the theory that humans evolved from apes. This theory has been supported by evidence collected from scientists for over 150 years!

A picture of Charles Darwin

Interesting Fact

Charles married his cousin, Emma. They had 10 children in total but two died when they were very young whilst another died when she was only 10 years old.