Dear Parent/Carer

The government has asked that PARENTS KEEP CHILDREN AT HOME, WHEREVER POSSIBLE, and asked schools to remain open ONLY for those children who ABSOLUTELY need to attend. The aim is to keep the numbers of children coming into schools to an absolute minimum. However, there is a recognition that parents who fulfil a role in key services MAY require childcare and schools will remain open as long as possible to ensure some provision for these families.

If your work is critical to the COVID-19 response, or you work in one of the critical sectors listed below, and you cannot keep your child safe at home then your children will be prioritised for education provision:

Note: The government initially do not wish for schools to exceed 20% of their pupils attending school during the partial closure as this would compromise safety and the point of school closures.

Remember; The advice is that if you can safely keep your children at home you should do.

To this end, we have initially to prioritise families where BOTH parents are key workers (or the sole parent is).

Health and social care: This includes, but is not limited to, doctors, nurses, midwives, paramedics, social workers, care workers, and other frontline health and social care staff including volunteers; the support and specialist staff required to maintain the UK's health and social care sector; those working as part of the health and social care supply chain, including producers and distributors of medicines and medical and personal protective equipment.

Education and childcare: This includes nursery and teaching staff, social workers and those specialist education professionals who must remain active during the COVID-19 response to deliver this approach.

Key public services: This includes those essential to the running of the justice system, religious staff, charities and workers delivering key frontline services, those responsible for the management of the deceased, and journalists and broadcasters who are providing public service broadcasting.

Local and national government: This only includes those administrative occupations essential to the effective delivery of the COVID-19 response or delivering essential public services such as the payment of benefits, including in government agencies and arm's length bodies.

Food and other necessary goods: This includes those involved in food production, processing, distribution, sale and delivery, as well as those essential to the provision of other key goods (for example hygienic and veterinary medicines).

Public safety and national security: This includes police and support staff, Ministry of Defence civilians, contractor and armed forces personnel (those critical to the delivery of key defence and national security outputs and essential to the response to the COVID-19 pandemic), fire and rescue service employees (including support staff), National Crime Agency staff, those maintaining border security, prison and probation staff and other national security roles, including those overseas.

Transport: This includes those who will keep the air, water, road and rail passenger and freight transport modes operating during the COVID-19 response, including those working on transport systems through which supply chains pass.

Utilities, communication and financial services: This includes staff needed for essential financial services provision (including but not limited to workers in banks, building societies and financial market infrastructure), the oil, gas, electricity and water sectors (including sewerage), information technology and data infrastructure sector and primary industry supplies to continue during the COVID-19 response, as well as key staff working in the civil nuclear, chemicals, telecommunications (including but not limited to network operations, field engineering, call centre staff, IT and data infrastructure, 999 and 111 critical services), postal services and delivery, payments providers and waste disposal sectors.

If you think you fall within the critical categories above you should confirm with your employer that, based on their business continuity arrangements, your specific role is necessary for the continuation of this essential public service.

Please respect the fact that we will do all we can to ensure provision, but we will undoubtedly find this increasingly difficult as our availability of staff reduces over coming days/weeks, and for that reason we ask that you send children only where absolutely necessary.

To allow us to plan for provision from Monday onwards, please complete the form available for Key Workers by clicking on:

by 5pm at the very latest on Tuesday 24th March.

We appreciate you may not yet have plans in place and these may be subject to change, but a prompt reply to enable us to plan as far as possible is very much appreciated. Should you want to look at the official government guidance, this can be found at:

Once again, I must emphasise that using the school for child care should be your last resort. You should try to explore working from home, changing your shifts etc with your employer. We will work with employers to support this. The school care should only be used if you are a critical to the fight against Covid-19, not for financial reasons and if you have no other alternative. Your children and families are safer at home.

Many thanks
