Dear Y5 Parents,

In the current climate, with regard to hygiene measures, we have sought additional advice from several sources regarding tomorrow's trip to the National Justice Museum.

The Museum itself have issued this statement to us:

National Justice Museum - Statement regarding Coronavirus
Coronavirus update

We are following the advice and hygiene precautions published by the Government and Public Health England, and we remain open to all visitors with no restrictions or changes to our hours. We continue to monitor the advice provided by the Department of Education, Public Health England and the UK Government on a regular basis. The Department of Education is at present advising schools there are no restrictions on school trips and everything should go ahead as normal. During the current situation, the Museum is following the advice and hygiene precautions published by Public Health England and the Government and will continue to monitor this advice on a regular basis. All public areas at the Museum are cleaned daily and handwash is available throughout the day to all our school visitors. If you want further advice and guidance on school trips please call the Department of Education coronavirus helpline 0800 046 6787 8am to 6pm Monday to Friday.

Our ELITE Health and Safety Providers have also provided an additional risk assessment for us, which will be strictly adhered to.

We are following advice from DfE and Public Health England. The trip will, therefore, take place tomorrow. We look forward to a really productive day learning all about Crime and Punishment.

Regards

Claire O'Hara
