

WHAT DID YOUR TEACHERS READ AS A CHILD?

1	Mrs Bowles	Roald Dahl The Boy . When my Dan was young he struggled with reading due to being dyslexic. Every night, we read this book and would take it in turns - he got totally engrossed in this book and can still remember today reading every night.
2	Mrs Osborn	My daughter lent me a book to read last year and I really enjoyed it. This is one of the books that she reads to her class: Danny the Champion of the World – Roald Dahl
3	Mrs White	I would recommend The Harry Potter Books because they are wonderful fantasy stories that follow the lives of children growing up. They are extremely well written and popular. Don't be put off by the size of the books, they are amazing.
4	Miss Young	I would recommend The Boy who Sailed the Ocean in an Armchair by Lara Williamson because it's a beautiful and sometimes funny story about friendship and goodbyes. It also features a snail called Brian. Who doesn't want a snail called Brian!?
5	Miss Perring	Northern Lights Book Thief
6	Mrs Joy	I would recommend... The Twits by Roald Dahl because...it made me laugh and I loved the quirky characters. We still quote the 'shrinking scene'. Very clever creative writing by Mr Dahl.
7	Mrs Sawtell	Things Fall Apart by Chinua Achebe because I loved learning about Nigeria (a place I have never been) and how the Europeans arrived.
8	Ms Day	I would recommend ' The Thief of Always ' by Clive Barker. It is a book for children written by a well-known writer of adult fiction. The main character, Harvey, is bored; bored of school and his life. He soon discovers that getting everything you wish for isn't always for the best! I love how the author twists the plot and keeps you guessing about whether the characters are 'goodies' or 'baddies'! It begins with one of my favourite metaphors in a book; ' The great grey beast February had eaten Harvey Swick alive '. As an added bonus, the black and white illustrations, also by the author, are fantastic!
9	Miss Watters	I would recommend Narnia (all 7 books) because each book is a fascinating new adventure with just the right amount of each ingredient: fear, battle, magic, morality, loyalty.
10	Miss Savage	I'd recommend Rooftoppers by Katherine Rundell because it tells a magical story of a girl named Sophie, who is found, on her first birthday, floating in a cello case in the middle of the ocean by an English scholar. Sophie embarks on an important adventure across rooftops to try and find her Mother before it is too late!
11	Miss Willis	When I was in my teens, I read a book called ' I Have Lived A Thousand Years ' by Livia Bitton-Jackson, which has always stuck with me. It's a story about a teenage girl who survives Auschwitz. Even though parts of it describe the terrible conditions in Auschwitz, a lot of why I liked it is because the main character is a normal girl who is easy to relate to.

WHAT DID YOUR TEACHERS READ AS A CHILD?

12	Mr Biddle	I would recommend Danny The Champion Of The World because central to the story is the love between a boy and his father. They lead a simple yet beautiful life and in their adventures you get to learn many ways of how to poach pheasants! Who knew a raisin could be so effective?
13	Mrs Minhinnick	Northern Lights , Phillip Pullman. I don't like fantasy genre but couldn't put this down. The characters and their relationships keep it 'real' and the book really makes you think. I devoured the trilogy and I'm now reading the sequel, The Book of Dust: The Secret Commonwealth .
14	Mrs Cradock	My recommendation is 'The Twits' by Roald Dahl. I loved this book as a child; I read it so many times and I have read it with both of my own children. I loved how Roald Dahl described how vile they were and the way that Mr and Mrs Twit played disgusting tricks on each other. I still think about the gruesome spaghetti made from garden worms that Mrs Twit fed to Mr Twit or how Mr Twit came up the genius idea of added a small disc to the bottom of Mrs Twit's walking stick each night to make her think that she was shrinking. Of course The Twits get what they deserve at the end of the book!
15	Miss Staddon	Can you see me? I'm currently reading this book, it's about ASC and has genuine diary entries from an 11yr old ASC girl. I think everyone should read it.
16	Mrs Hancock	Mine was The Secret Garden by Francis Burnett because it lets your imagination run wild, I used to pretend that I had found a secret garden and I was the only one who knew about it, I would go there to think. It's soon coming out in cinemas, I'll be interested to see if it sticks to the story!
17	Mrs Martin	I am not a big reader! However, I did read The Keeper of Lost Things by Ruth Hogan and I really enjoyed that. I would recommend it because it is an easy book to read, but has lots of little stories within it which eventually all link together. I was sad to finish it!
18	Mr Beet	Born to Run by Michael Morpurgo It tells the story of the greyhound Best Mate. From the start of the story, when Patrick rescues a sack containing puppies from the canal, you are grabbed and really feel for the different characters - For Best Mate this is only the start of his adventures - you follow him from being a pet to being a champion race dog and the dangers that then leads to, such as being kidnapped and living rough on the streets. Like all good books, it takes you to another world.
19	Mr Mitchem	Mine was The Silver Sword by Jan Serrailier A really good action/ adventure story based on true events during WW2. It also has really good links to history
21	Mrs Pegram	Malory Towers - Crazy girls' school! I would recommend these books. The story is set at a Clifftop boarding school in Cornwall. The main character is Darrell Rivers, who is rather hot-headed but has an exciting time at school.
22	Mrs Collins	I liked Stig of the Dump . We had just moved to a new house on the edge of a small housing estate. We had a gang called Boots because we all wore wellies as it was so muddy. We went off on our own Stig adventures and probably went further onto the common than we would have been allowed had we asked permission!

23	Ms Ward	I would recommend the adventure series by Willard Price . Each book in the series is titled after an animal or place, like ' Gorilla Adventure ', or my favourite, ' Amazon Adventure '. I read these over and over again when I was a child as they took the reader to exciting, far-flung places and taught so much about natural history alongside the gripping adventures of two brothers, Hal and Roger. It was kind of the next step in adventure mysteries from Famous Five I suppose.
24	Mrs McNair	Everything by Nicola Yoon - for KS3 - wonderful story with a massive twist at the end!
26	Mr Bagwell	Magic far Away Tree - Enid Blyton
28	Mrs Roberts	Famous Five - because I loved their adventures and the fact that their characters were all so different. I also loved their picnics...hard boiled eggs and lashings of ginger beer!!!
29	Mr Otter	I liked the Elfstones of Shannara - by Terry Brookes. I picked it up because I liked the cover and then read the whole series.
30	Mrs Stripp	I loved Goodnight Mr Tom . Even now, when they show it on TV, I love to sit and watch it, but the book is better!
31	Mrs Atkinson	The Lie Tree by Frances Hardy Entertaining and provocative, this book manages to do what all good fantasy and historical fiction does: shine a light on our world.
32	Ms Burgess	Wasn't a great reader as a child but liked, Terry Pratchett - Truckers, Diggers and Wings . Also The Velveteen Rabbit .
33	Mrs Boon	My favourite book was The Hobbit . I also liked all of The Famous 5 books and Mallory Towers . Recently one of the best books I have read is Ways To Live Forever by Sally Nicholls, however it was so sad, I cried at the end. I also loved The Book Thief
34	Mr Giddings	Roald Dahl books. A couple of my favourites being Fantastic Mr Fox, George's Marvellous Medicine and The Twits .
35	Mrs Gollege	I would be another fan of Enid Blyton's Famous Five - just for the fun adventures they used to get up to. As a parent The Gruffalo to my younger children (although I think it's quite dark now :) and in the later years the Harry Potter series, just because I also enjoyed Michelle Obama's Becoming - The journey she and then they went on was impressive!
36	Miss Way	My favourite childhood book was ' The Twits ' by Roald Dahl. I found them absolutely hilarious, I love the funny names for characters and the humour through the story. Anything written by Roald Dahl is a winner in my eyes, my daughter loves the stories too!
37	Mrs Bunting	I loved the story - Island of the Blue Dolphins by Ted O'dell. The Witches, James and the Giant Peach... most things Roald Dahl...

WHAT DID YOUR TEACHERS READ AS A CHILD?
		I really was not a confident reader as a child, but I loved being read to. Any story that I could imagine myself in, so usually involving characters of my age at the time
38	Mrs Deeney	Anything with animals as the main character. Enid Blyton ' The Secret Seven ' and ' The Famous Five. ' Swallows and Amazons. Brer Rabbit.
39	Mr Denning	I remember discovering Terry Pratchett back when I was a year 6 lad at Ozzies. Without fail, his books have made me laugh and so he has remained a firm favourite ever since. I've always loved the way he phrases things in a slightly peculiar way, just odd enough to make you think and giggle that little bit harder.
40	Mrs Harrington	We are big on fantasy books in our house which all stemmed from The Faraway Tree by Enid Blyton. I loved the characters, the different lands they visited and the fact that people lived in a tree! We have all enjoyed the humour of Frank Cottrell Boyce in his Chitty Bang series. Kate Saunders' Whizz Pop Chocolate Shop first introduced us to talking animals and danger which has influenced our reads ever since. The Wild series by Piers Torday (which you obviously know) and There must be a Castle is also a good one by him. We love Coraline by Neil Gaiman (Girl with all the Gifts and American Gods are also fab but not for this age range) The Nowhere Emporium by Ross Mackenzie has just the right amount of danger and magic and you totally invest in the characters. The fantastic description of the various worlds immerse you totally into the mystery and drama of the book. My ultimate favourite book is The Night Circus by Erin Morgenstern but is probably too old to recommend here.
41	Mrs Adams	I would recommend The Enemy by Charlie Higson to Year 7-8. It's a children's horror story and the first in a series of 7 books. The story is about a virus which only affects people over the age of 14. Children are left to fend for themselves. The story is set in London where children are living in supermarkets and famous tourist attractions such as Buckingham Palace and the Natural History Museum.
42	Mrs Arnold	When I was in middle school, my biggest go-to author was Judy Blume. I'm not sure if she'll be appealing today for children but her books really spoke to the trials and tribulations of girls of that age group back in the day. Sometimes I read my mom's books when she was finished with them. One of those was The Princess Bride , which I read when I was 11. It was (and still is) my favourite book. Romance, adventure, princess, heroes...the whole kit and caboodle. I gave it to my best friend to read and we swore that when we were older we'd make it into a film, but when we were 18, someone beat us to it. My friend Susan, however, did carry on to be a film maker and play writer.

WHAT DID YOUR TEACHERS READ AS A CHILD?

43	Mr Fitzgerald	The book I enjoyed the most at middle school was, ' You Can't Win everything Charlie Brown ' by Charles Shultz. I also loved the Hitch Hiker's Guide to the Galaxy trilogy.
44	Mrs Lawrence	The Adventures of Blink and Flip . Enid Blyton was a childhood book.
45	Mrs Thorpe	I loved The Happy Prince and The Selfish Giant by Oscar Wilde. Both beautifully written with an excellent moral and spiritual dimension.
46	Mrs Hewitt	Alanna: Song of the Lioness by Tamora Pierce. A 10 year old girl disguises herself as a boy to train as a knight. I like it because she was strong and tough and not afraid of bullies. I first read it as a 10 year old girl and it remains my favourite book.
47	Mrs Restorick	I loved Treasure Island , Robert Louis Stevenson. It's the ultimate adventure story- mystery, greed, murder, heroism- with good ultimately triumphing! An exciting read, with great characters and a plot full of suspense.
48	Mrs Slater	I'd say The Folk of The Faraway Tree . Also, The Animals of Farthing Wood or any Colin Dan books as well as any Dick-King Smith books
49	Miss Pike	I would recommend Lord of the Rings because, it really got my imagination working with all of the description and mythical creatures. I had the whole trilogy and couldn't put it down after I had read the first one as I needed to know how it ended.
50	Mrs Haysom	I used to love reading the Worst Witch by Jill Murphy. The idea of a witches' boarding school was just awesome and it was written way before Harry Potter was on the scene! I used to get so excited when new copies came into the school library!
52	Mr Harland	My favourite book was 101 Dalmatians by Dodie Smith - followed by the sequel - The Twilight Barking . I would recommend this book to anyone who likes dogs and evil villains!
55	Mrs Christian	One of my favourite books is ' A Monster Calls ' by Patrick Ness. I love the imagery in the book. The extended metaphor of what the monster represents and although the book is incredibly sad it is also beautifully written about an incredibly difficult topic. Thought provoking and emotive.
57	Mrs Dipple	A book that children I've worked with over the last few year loved is: " My Dad's a Birdman " by David Almond - brilliantly written, thought provoking, engaging and accessible.
58	Mrs Finan	I loved reading Harry Potter and still waiting for my letter to Hogwarts!
59	Mrs Topp	Roald Dahl George's Marvellous Medicine
