

Thursday 25th January 2018

W.A.L.T. A Day as an Anglo Saxon child.

Dear Diary:

Today is Eostre month and I am up bright and early to get the wood to light the fire. once I lit the fire I collected some cold fresh water from the river for us to drink. So we drank our water and ate our porridge.

Next me and my sister and brother went to look out for those pesky wolves. Now is the exciting part, feeding Eostre by giving her eggs and giving other people eggs. We pray to her to ask her for a good fortune in the coming summer months. So we had a break to do the giving and feeding Eostre, we did it in the "Big Hall". Now we are all having the feast! Tea with had lots of meat, "goat", "pigs", "sheep", and "eggs".

When we were walking home we saw people feeding animals and when we got home we went to bed. While we were going to sleep dad played the lute and mum sang a lullabye soon enough I was asleep.

Angel May