Read the following poem about an imaginary planet.

The Planet Blatt

When I landed
I was in shock!
There were no rivers, seas or rock,
Trees or forests,
Deserts or sand,
Houses or buildings,
Schools or churches,
Children or grown-ups,
Not a bird or a cat.
Just fancy that!
The planet Blatt.

Now create your own planet. Imagine what it looks like and who or what lives on it. Draw it, or write about it, on the planet below and remember to give it a name.

My imaginary planet - .....

Villainous Verses

Incy's Revenge

Incy Wincy spider
Climbed up the water spout,
Someone flushed the toilet
And washed the spider out.
Incy was all wet now
He wanted to get even,
He wriggled up the spout again
And saw a boy called Steven.

Incy Wincy spider
Climbed up the toilet pan,
It really was quite stinky,
It smelt of eggy flan.
Incy watched the little boy
Brushing all his teeth,
He ran across the toilet lid
And waited just beneath.

Incy Wincy Spider
Climbed up the bathroom wall,
He crawled up to the ceiling
And let himself then fall.
The little boy was gargling
His eyes were open wide,
When Incy fell onto his face
Little Steven cried.

Incy Wincy spider
Bit him on the nose,
He spun a web around his ears
And danced upon his toes.
Little Steven ran away
He screamed with all his might,
He didn't want to flush again
And couldn't sleep all night!

What Shall I Draw?

Draw a house with four walls a white fence with a gate in it four windows, a smoking chimney – and the path must be lined with cockleshells and sunflowers

What shall I draw next?

An apple tree and a plum tree
a sheet of grass, pale green,
a tent made from a blanket, washing on the washing-line.

What shall I put in the house?

A face at the window looking out, four chairs, a table, a bowl of fruit and in the room with the red curtains
you can draw yourself, sleeping.

You can draw yourself, sleeping.
Even when the doors are shut you can draw your way home.
