<sup>10</sup>This is a story that spoke of a gentleman who went to meet his friend after 20 years. <sup>20</sup>And he stood in the doorway that was once a restaurant, called Big Joe's. <sup>3C</sup>And the policeman came by. <sup>4C</sup>And (he) asked him why he was standing there. <sup>5C</sup>He indicated that he had planned to meet a good friend who he hadn't seen for 20 years because they both parted ways. <sup>6O</sup>One went to the west to make his fortune. <sup>7O</sup>And the other one stayed in New York (ok?). <sup>8C</sup>And at that time (at that time) he was talking to the policeman. <sup>9C</sup>The policeman asked him how long he thought he would wait on his friend. <sup>10C</sup>He said approximately another 20 or 30 minutes. <sup>11C</sup>So, ironically, a gentleman came across the street wearing a trenchcoat and with the collar pulled up around his ears. <sup>12C</sup>And they said they would go to another store to sit and and talk about good times, the old days. <sup>13C</sup>So at that time they both took an opportunity to look at each other. <sup>14R</sup>And the man in the doorway realized that it wasn't his friend after all. <sup>15R</sup>And (he) come to find out his friend was a policeman himself. <sup>16R</sup>And he realized this when he lit his cigar while he was standing in the doorway. <sup>17R</sup>It was a picture of a wanted man. <sup>18R</sup>And he could not arrest his friend himself. <sup>19R</sup>So therefore, he sent a plainclothes policeman to do it. <sup>20O</sup>Now, the individual's names were Jimmy and Bob. <sup>21E</sup>I'm sorry I can't remember the other man's name. <sup>22O</sup>I think it's Bob. <sup>23CO</sup>And that's the end of the story. <sup>24E</sup>The moral of the story is that even if you make your fortune illegally, you never take the chance of not paying for your crimes. <sup>25E</sup>You will pay one way or the other. <sup>26E</sup>Just so happened that he had to go all the way back to New York to pay. <sup>27CO</sup>And his friend ended up being a policeman. <sup>28CO</sup>That's it.
