

An Illusory Contour Can Facilitate Visually Induced Self-Motion Perception

Shinji Nakamura <sup>1,*</sup> and Shin'ya Takahashi <sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Inter-departmental Education Center, Nihon Fukushi University, Japan

<sup>2</sup> School of Psychology, Tokai Gakuen University, Japan

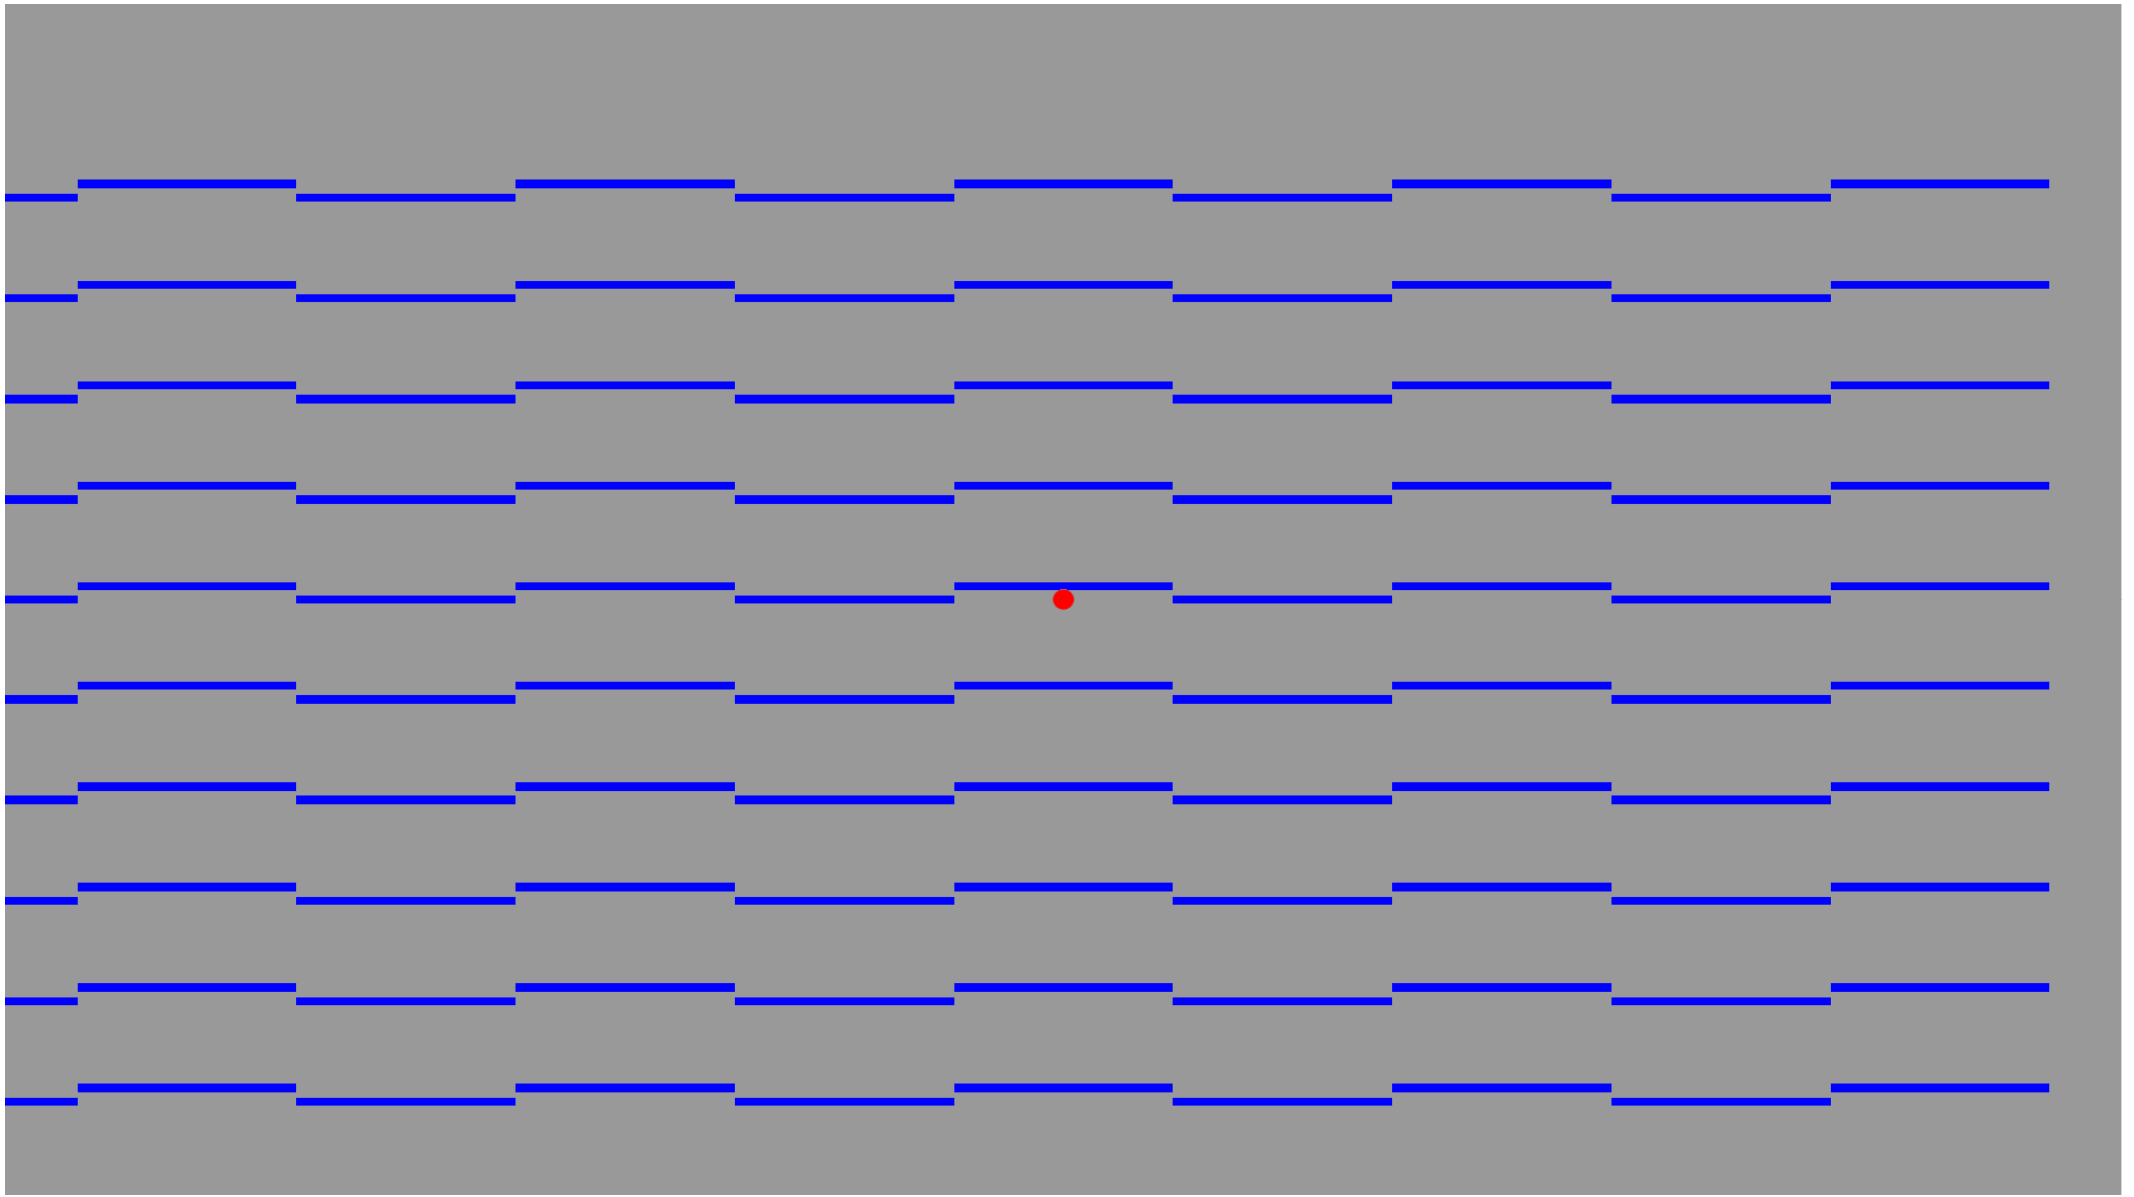

Received 28 December 2017; accepted 27 May 2018

* To whom correspondence should be addressed. E-mail: shinji@n-fukushi.ac.jp

Supplementary Material

with illusory contour
Line length: 10 degree
Number of Line: 20

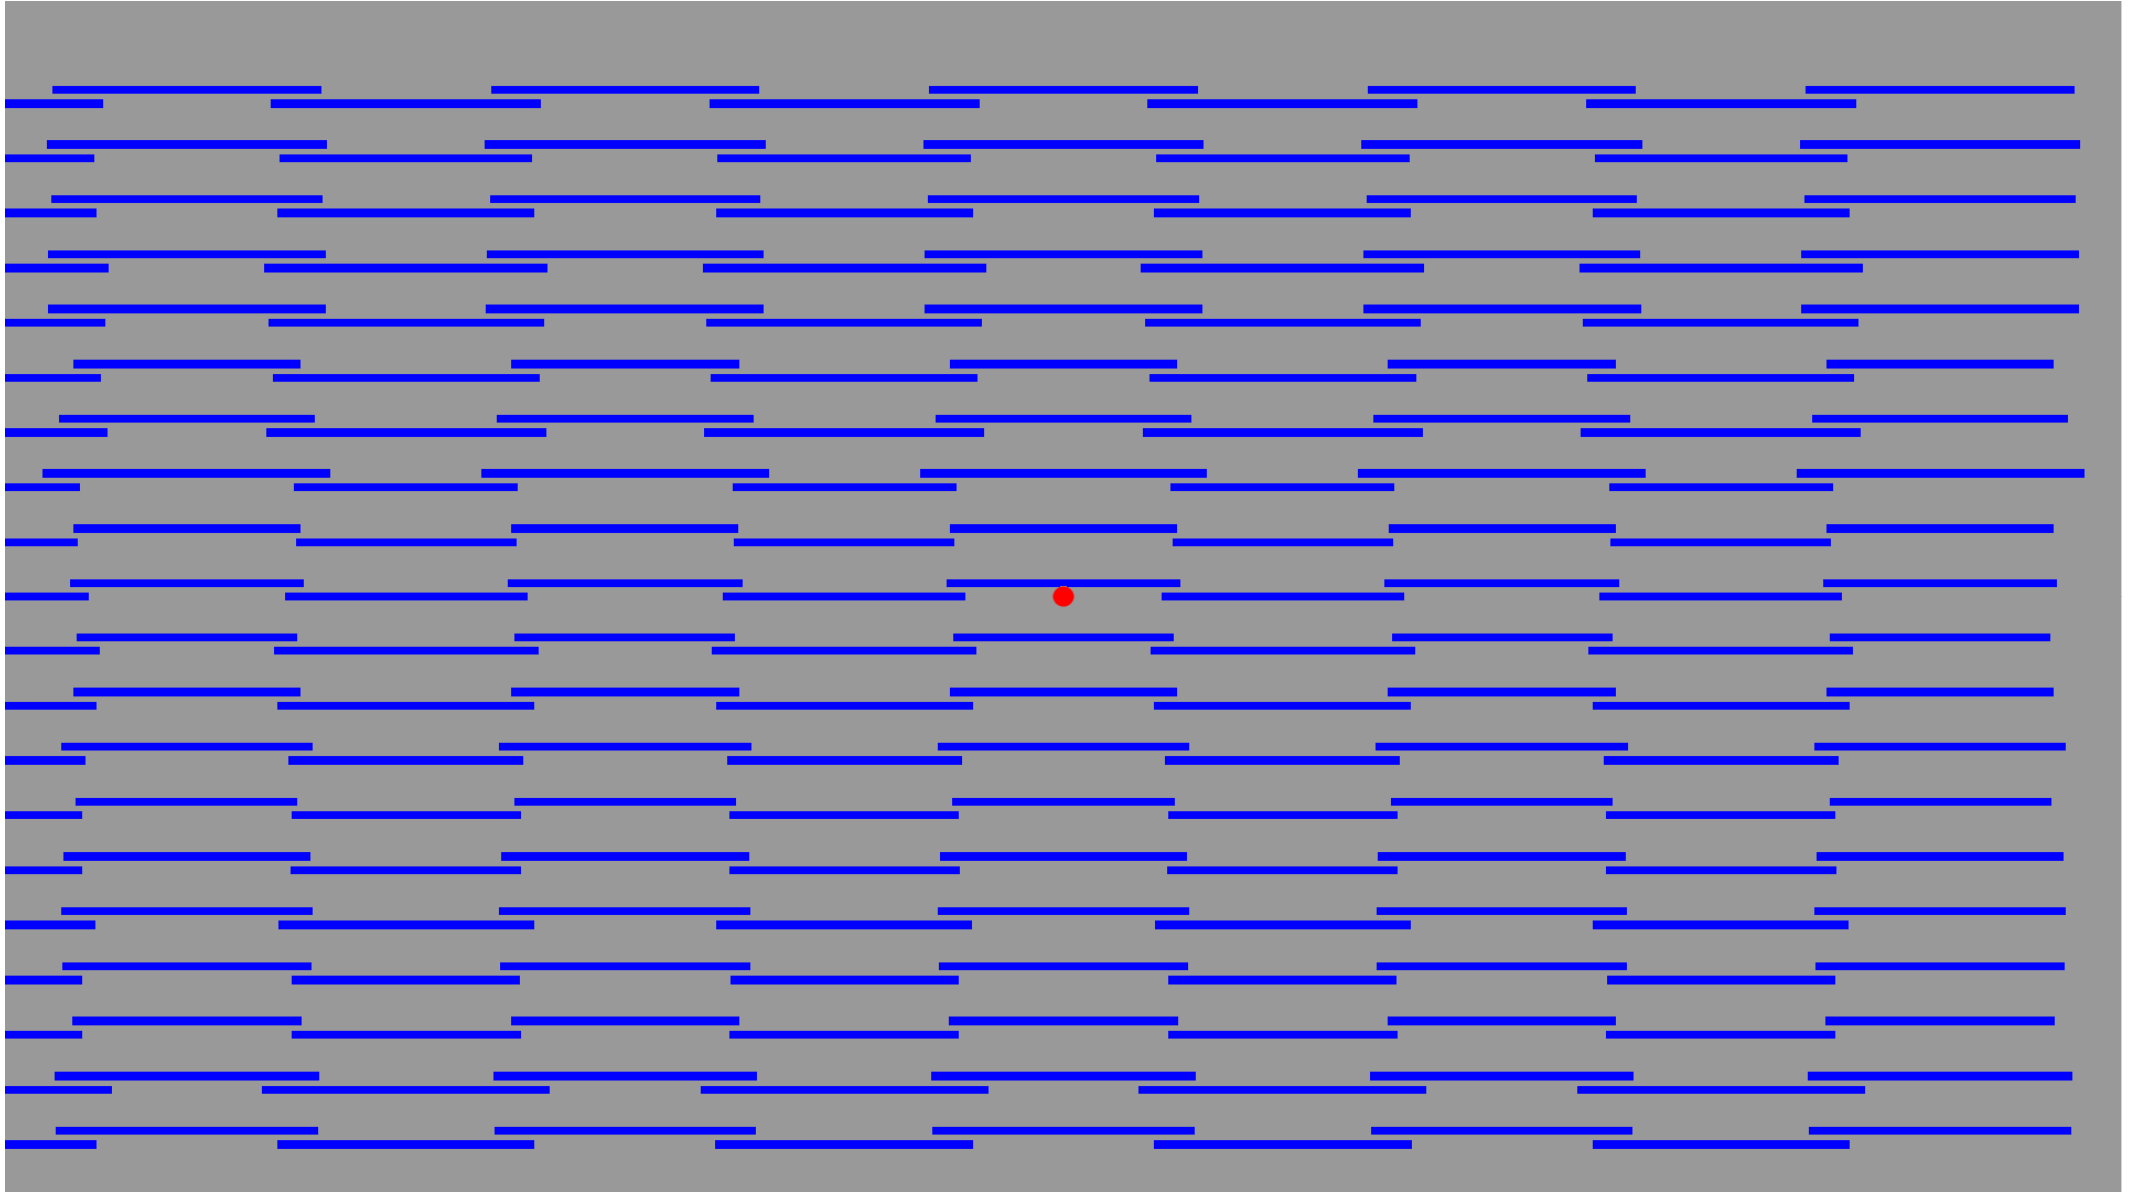

with illusory contour
Line length: 10 degree
Number of Line: 10

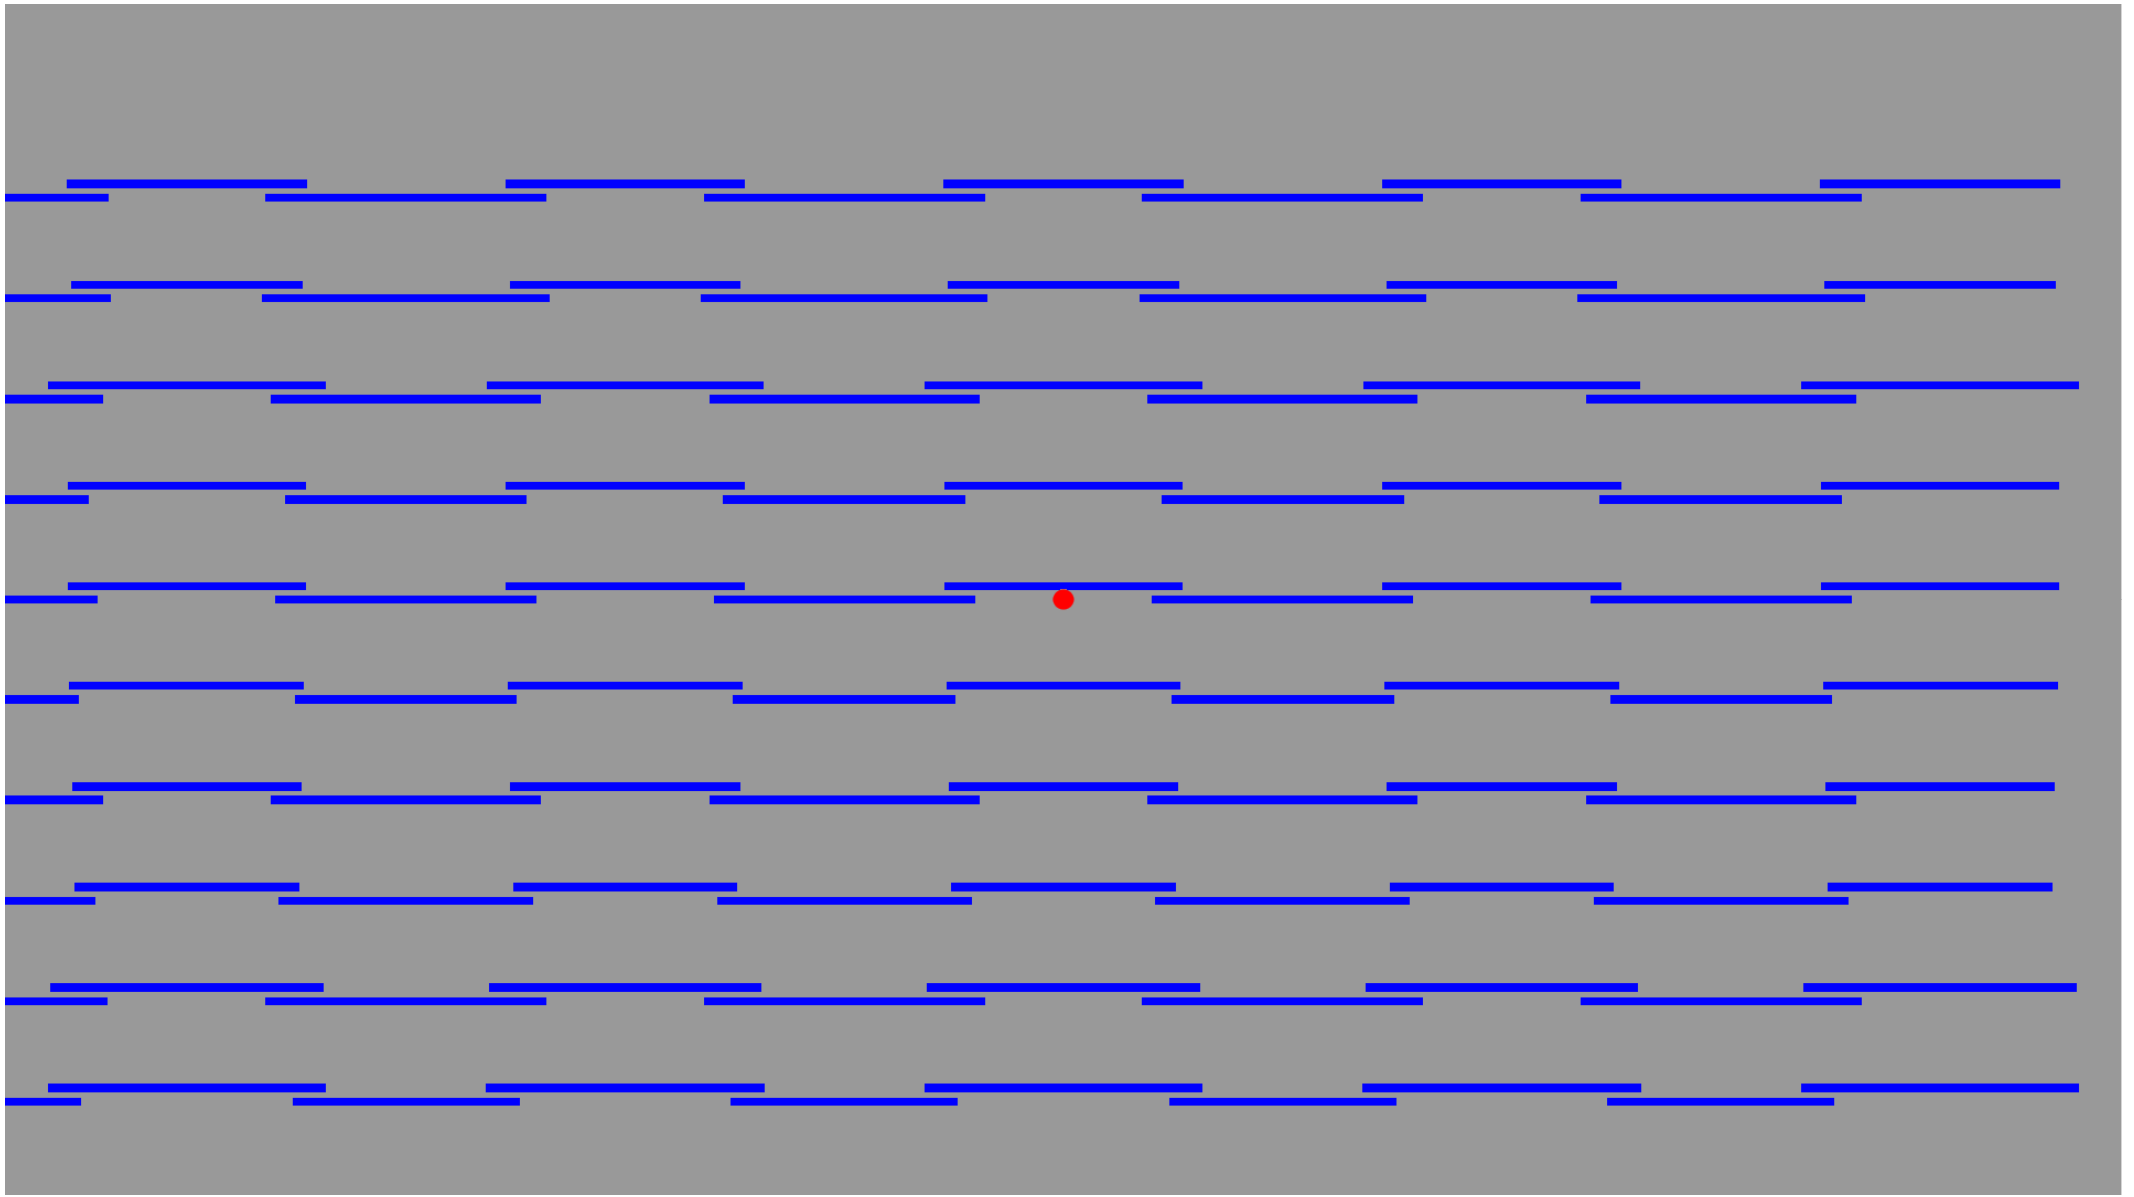

with illusory contour
Line length: 5 degree
Number of Line: 20

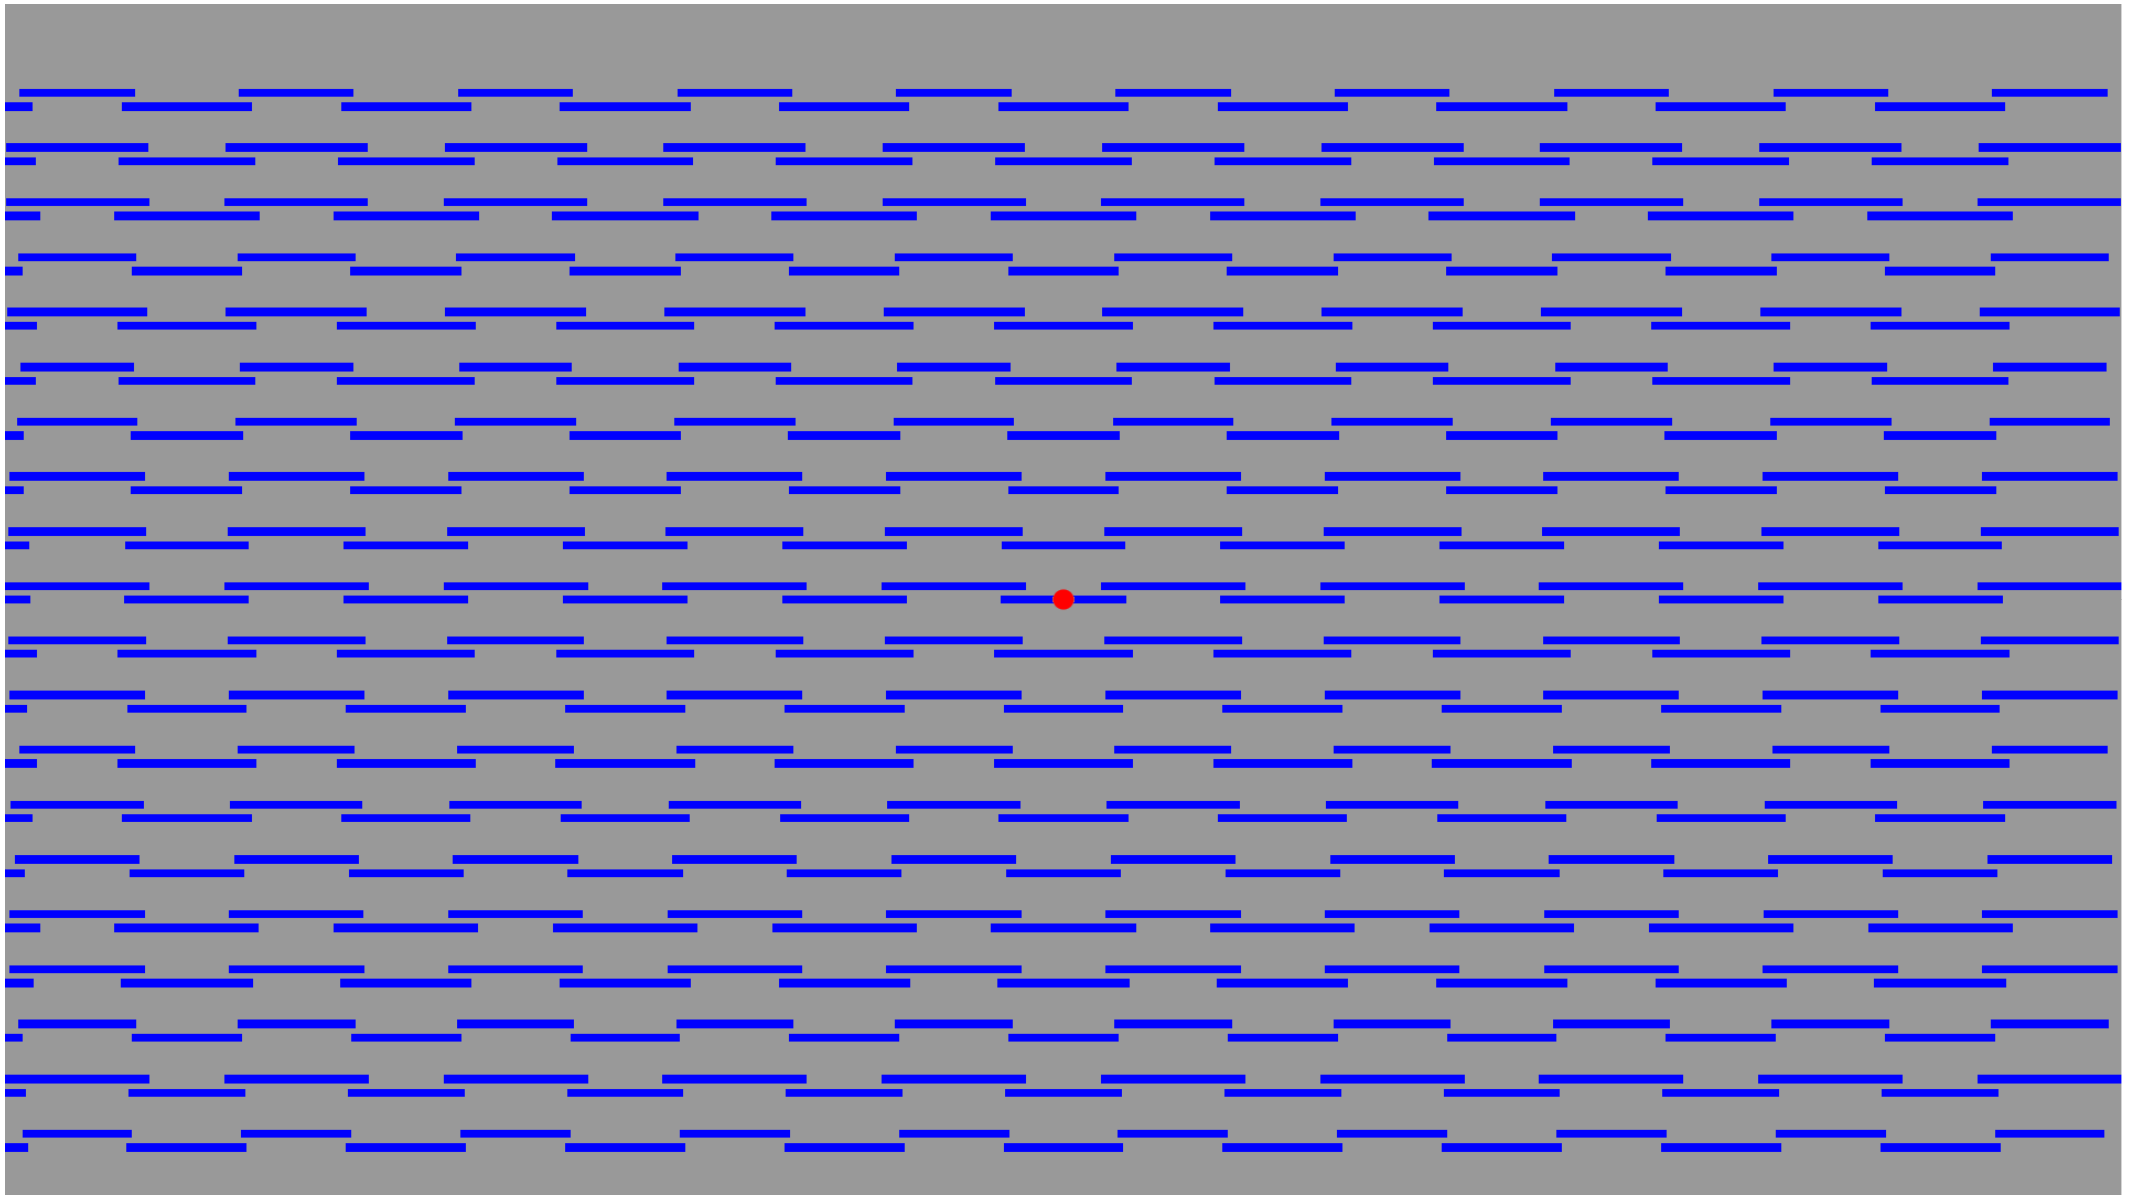

with illusory contour
Line length: 5 degree
Number of Line: 10

without illusory contour
Line length: 10 degree
Number of Line: 20

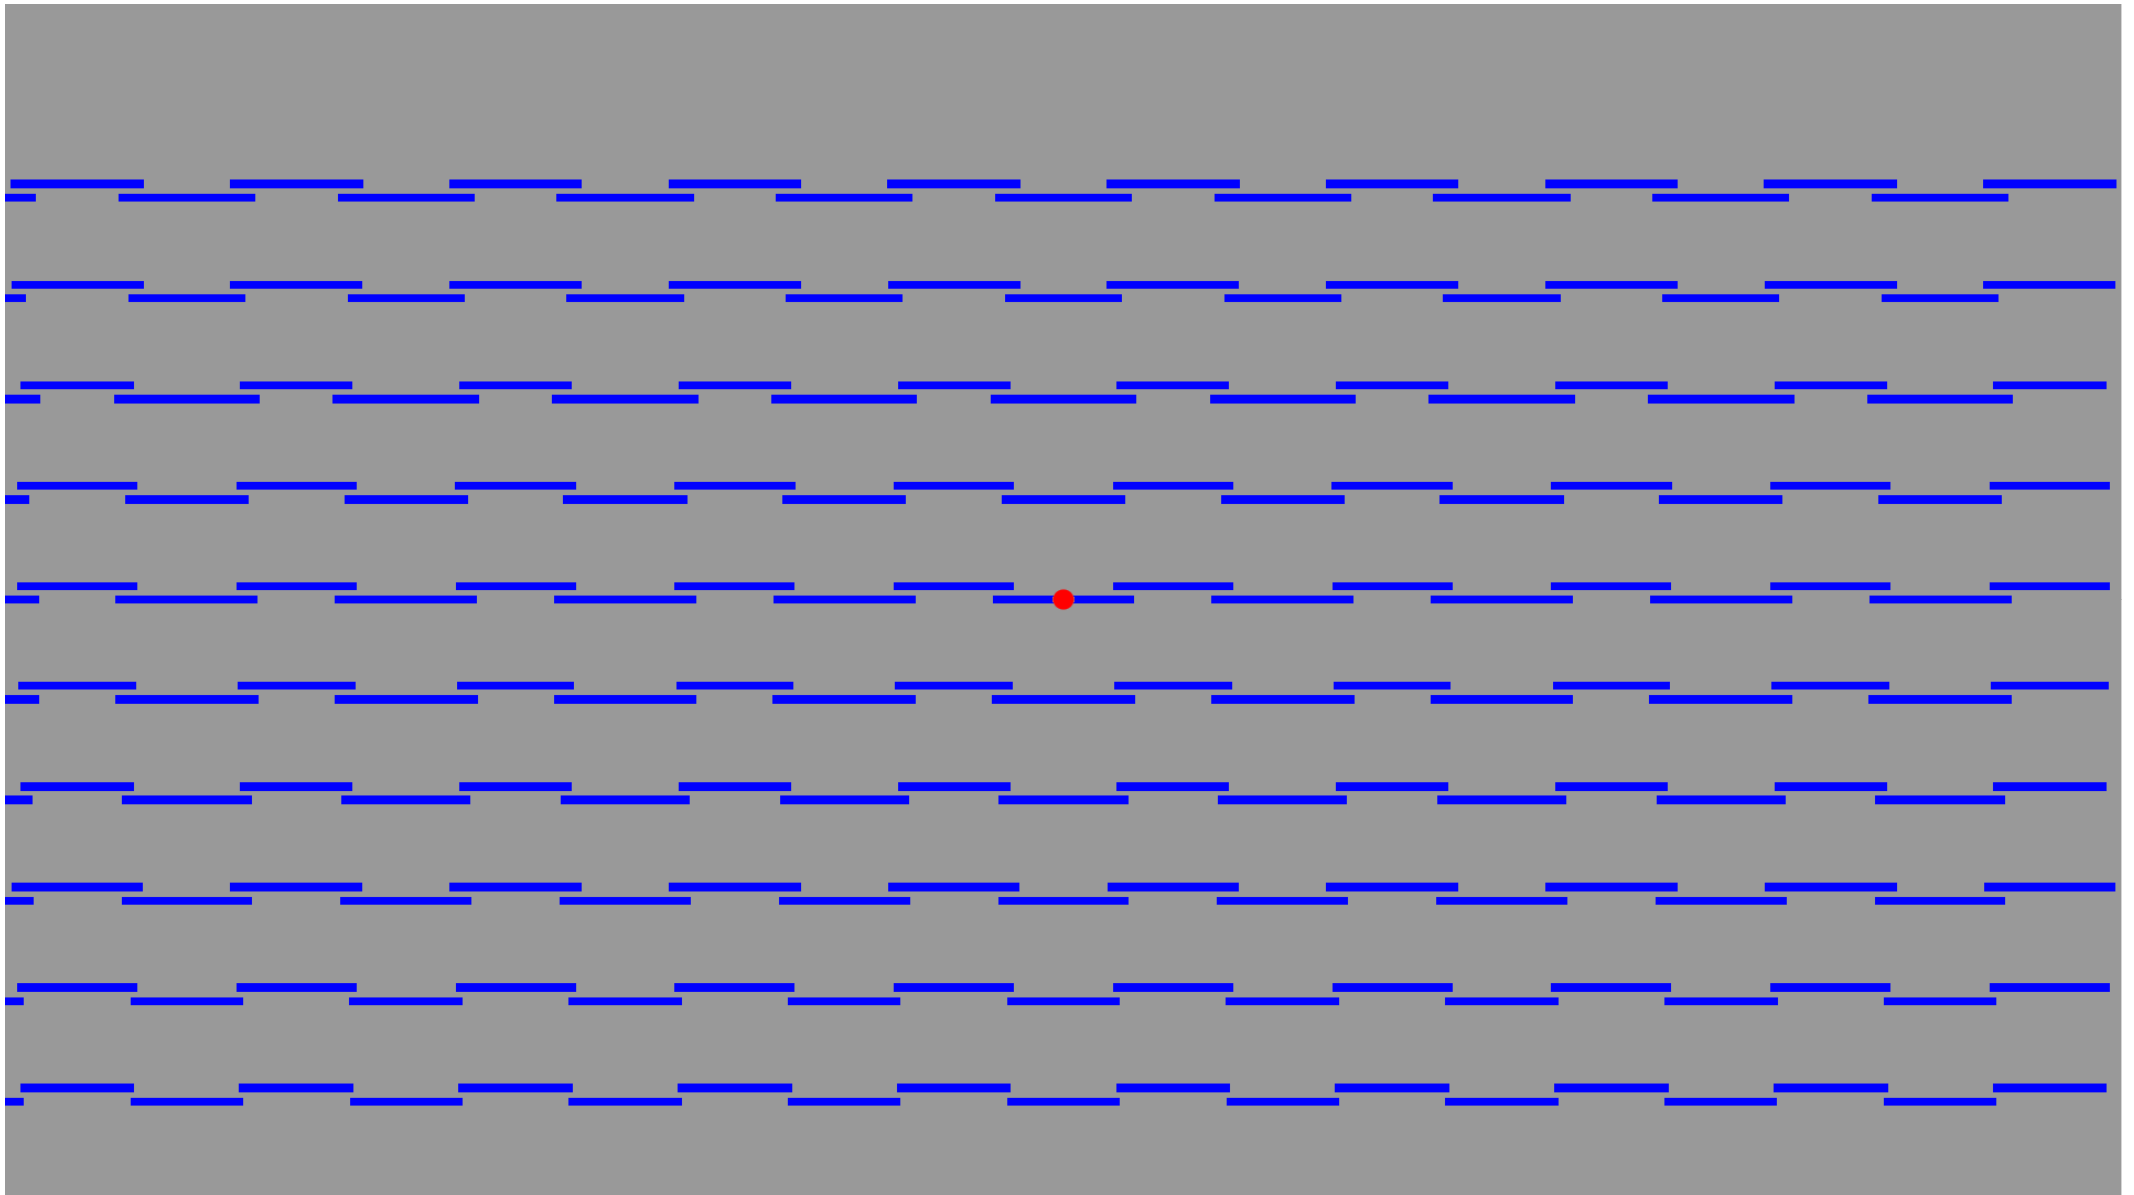

without illusory contour
Line length: 10 degree
Number of Line: 10

without illusory contour
Line length: 5 degree
Number of Line: 20

without illusory contour
Line length: 5 degree
Number of Line: 10