The significant increase in China’s scholarly output and citation number can be a result of the increase in funding and number of graduate students. China’s research funding from government and business sectors has surpassed the U.S. in 2017.

Bibliography
