

Supplementary Figure S2: Prediction of natively disordered regions of orthologous Viperins from several species. The N-terminal region of all modeled Viperins is predicted to be an intrinsically disordered region, similar to the case for the determined structure of the mouse Viperin.